Dominican Boss For 31 Years Shot

Two Of Reported
Seven Attackers
Caught Or Killed

SAN JUAN, P. R. (AP) — Assassins have shot down and killed Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, the Dominican dictator.

The death of the 69-year-old strongman—dictator for 31 years and a storm center in inter-American relations—was announced late Wednesday in Ciudad Trujillo, his capital.

The communique gave no details except to say Trujillo fell victim to an atentado (assassination) during the night.

Other information reaching San Juan Wednesday night from responsible sources gave this version:

Seven persons in an automobile attacked Trujillo at 10 p.m. Tuesday as he was driving to Ciudad Trujillo from his home in San Cristobal.

Trujillo was shot.

Two of his attackers were caught or killed. The other five are presumed to have got away.

As an aftermath to the assassination police went at 4:30 a.m. to the home of Roman Catholic Bishop Thomas F. Reilly, who has been under house arrest growing out of a dispute between Trujillo and the church.

Bishop Reilly was taken away but later was returned to his home—with apologies.

No Disorders Reported

The death of Trujillo was announced officially at 4:45 p.m. EST—roughly 19 hours after his death occurred. Presumably Trujillo's aides used this time to tie down military control of the country.

Joaquin Balaguer, the figurehead president under Trujillo's rule, signed the communique broadcast over Dominican radio stations and later telegraphed abroad.

Aside from the communique, correspondents in Ciudad Trujillo said they could not send out any news.

The communique said the country was quiet and no disorders had occurred. It proclaimed nine days of mourning.

Balaguer asked the people to help "maintain the continuity" of what he called the Trujillo legacy.

The Trujillo regime's control of news organs as well as most other enterprises in the Dominican Republic is so strict that even rumors of the assassination did not reach other countries until 12 hours or so after it occurred.

Rusk Stays In Washington

First an Associated Press dispatch from Port au Prince, Haiti, told of the mysterious arrival of a plane from Ciudad Trujillo which carried no Dominican passengers, though about 20 had been booked. One of the persons aboard brought the first rumors of Trujillo's death.

Then the State Department in Washington said it had received unconfirmed reports of the assassination.

In Paris, President Kennedy instructed Secretary of State Dean Rusk to remain in Washington to keep abreast of developments, rather than fly overnight to Paris and on to Vienna for the Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting.

216 Million In USSR

MOSCOW (AP)—The population of the Soviet Union grew by 3,828,000 during 1960, according to Sergei Kurashov, Soviet minister of health. This would bring the total population to an estimated 216 million.

U.S. Must Afford $4.5 Billion Aid, Rusk Declares

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy's $4.5 billion foreign aid program could spell the difference between world chaos and "a steady ascent into more effective coherence and order," Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Wednesday.

While the cost is high, he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the nation can afford what must be done.

"What we cannot afford," he added, "is to fail to undertake the effort — and a sufficient effort."

Rusk entered a special plea for Kennedy's proposal that five-year borrowing authority be substituted for the current year-to-year financing of overseas assistance.

Termining this "the heart of the new program," he said: "We must attempt to forestall crises to crises."

The secretary offered a top-level opening argument for the embattled aid plan. There is strong congressional opposition to many of its features—particularly long-term financing.

Rusk placed heavy emphasis on Kennedy's proposal to consolidate all aid programs under a single state department administrative unit of the least objectionable provisions in the measure.

"We need simplicity . . . authority to move promptly and authority in the hand of responsible and identifiable individuals," the secretary said.

Rusk said the United States also must work to persuade her allies to carry a heavier share of the aid load. And he said it also must insist that the nations receiving help show evidence of wanting to help themselves.

Following his appearance, the committee recessed until Monday, when it will resume hearings with testimony from Henry R. Labouisse, administrator of the International Cooperation Administration.

Armenian Longevity

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet news agency Tass reports from Yerevan, Soviet Armenia that about 450 Armenians—33 per 100,000 population—are 100 years old or older. Included are two 120-year-old men in an Ashtarak region village who visit each other, Tass said.

Smathers Wants Marines In Dominican Republic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., said Wednesday two brigades of U.S. Marines should be sent to the Dominican Republic to prevent a Communist takeover following the assassination of strongman Rafael Trujillo.

Smathers, who is chairman of the Latin American trade subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee, called for the Marines while other U.S. officials expressed worry that Trujillo's death would lead to upset of the Dominican government.

The Florida Democrat said the Marines are needed "to preserve order, to forestall a Castro-engineered coup in that country, and to guarantee free elections for the Dominican people."

Smathers said subversion forces under Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's brother, Raul, are ready to

Tawes Calls Legislature Back June 9

Petitions To Block
Savings And Loan,
Court Acts Filed

BALTIMORE (AP)—Gov. Tawes said Wednesday he will call the Maryland Legislature into special session at 10 a.m. Friday, June 9 to enact new legislation regulating the savings and loan industry and broadening powers of Baltimore's municipal court.

The governor's announcement came after petitions had been filed in Annapolis late Wednesday blocking the effect of legislative acts which would accomplish these two objectives.

Tawes worked out plans for the special session at a two-hour conference in his Baltimore office with legislative leaders, the attorney general and his assistants, and representatives of the new Baltimore court.

The governor said his call for the special session would be conditioned on approval by the attorney general of petitions which were filed in Annapolis to block the savings and loan and Municipal Court bills.

The petitions arrived at the historic Maryland State House in an armored truck escorted by James H. (Jack) Pollack, northwest Baltimore political leader, whose black sedan preceded it.

He had 16,747 signatures against the bill to set up a state board to regulate Maryland's $1.5 billion savings and loan industry and 28,873 against a bill to enlarge the powers of Baltimore's new Municipal Court and expand it from 11 to 15 judges.

Only 10,000 signatures are needed to place a statewide bill on the general election ballot in 1962, and half that number would have delayed the effective date of the act. Pollack indicated more signatures were in reserve on each bill if needed.

Before Pollack's dramatic arrival, two other statewide bills and two local measures which would have taken effect Thursday had already been stopped through (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

21 Venezuelan Plotters Seized

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Defense Minister Gen. Antonio Briceño Linares Wednesday announced the discovery of a plot to overthrow President Romulo Betancourt's government.

He said 21 persons had been arrested and quantities of explosives seized in a series of raids. Briceño said the conspirators hoped to carry out a "putsch" against the government, apparently with the aid of the armed forces.

But he emphasized that the "majority" of the nation's military personnel had rejected overtures from the plotters.

Speaking at a news conference the minister declined to make public the names of those arrested but said most of them were former members of ex-dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez's secret police.

Among the items seized, he said, were five boxes of dynamite, an automatic timing mechanism for time bombs, a quantity of military uniforms, 30 rifles and three machineguns.

move into the Dominican Republic

"and capitalize on the situation. Communist forces from Cuba have already attempted one armed invasion there.

"The political vacuum in the Dominican Republic can easily degenerate into bloody civil war and a Communist takeover of the country by the Castro brothers if the United States stands idly by," Smathers said.

State Department officials took the view that unrest built up during Trujillo's 30 years of iron rule could erupt into major civil strife. They said this could take the form of a popular uprising.

The officials said the big unanswered question was whether the assassination was carried out by some outside element, or whether members of Trujillo's puppet government had engineered it in order to take over.

South African Republic Born; Swart Sworn In

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — South Africa inaugurated an Afrikaner president Wednesday in place of a queen. He declared the new republic ruled by whites will push ahead with its own way of life.

President Charles R. Swart, 66, tall descendant of South Africa's Dutch settlers, said the nation wants friendship with the rest of the world.

But he added: "We also claim the right to decide for ourselves on matters of domestic policy, according to the expressed will of the electorate, without interference from outside."

Thus the Afrikaners realized their historic dream of an independent republic—despite the bitter opposition of millions of Negroes and a defiant pocket of English-speaking whites.

Fighting the tide of Africa's black nationalism and founded on the precept that white men must rule, the republic was born at midnight amid the discordant sounds of church bells and booming cannon. Thus ended years of often bitter association with the British crown and Commonwealth.

The nation was quiet under the watch of police and troops.

Appeals for unity and reconciliation among races and communities keyed the ceremonies.

South Africa has about 14 million inhabitants. There are 11 million nonwhites, mostly Negroes with about 1 million mulattoes and Indians, and about 3 million whites with a 2:1 majority of those who speak Afrikaans — a dialect of Dutch — over those who speak English.

Most of the English-speaking community voted against the new republic in a referendum earlier this year. It passed by a narrow majority. The Negroes were not permitted to vote at all.

Swart took the oath of office at a Dutch Reformed church surrounded by jaraacanda trees in Pretoria, seat of the government and stronghold of Afrikaner nationalism.

Khrushchev Arrives In Czech Border City

VIENNA (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev arrived in the Czechoslovakian city of Bratislava Wednesday and said "the Soviet voice, as always, will be that of peace" when he meets President Kennedy here Saturday.

Khrushchev, in a television appearance seen and heard in Vienna, told a large but only mildly responsive crowd that the Russians seek a solution to world problems and are certain the American people want peace.

But he added: "I do not want to predict the results of my meeting" with Kennedy.

Bratislava, on the Czech-Austrian border, is only 30 miles from Vienna. Khrushchev will arrive here by train Friday morning and will meet Kennedy Saturday and Sunday.

Atty. General Urged Negro Driver For Freedom Rider Bus

By The Associated Press

A bus company official testified Wednesday that Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy urged him vigorously to get a Negro to drive a "Freedom Riders" bus when white drivers refused to move it.

When he replied that no Negro drivers were available, the witness said Kennedy told him, "Well, hell, you can look for one, can't you?"

The statement came in U.S. District Court after Birmingham police were cleared of blame for race rioting there, but a similar Justice Department complaint against Montgomery police was left pending.

Called as a defense witness, Greyhound Supt. George E. Cruitt of Birmingham said Kennedy telephoned him after regular drivers refused to take the bus from Birmingham to Montgomery. Several scheduled trips were canceled before a Greyhound driver finally made the run May 20.

A screaming white mob attacked the Freedom Riders when the bus got here, and the Justice Department contends police "deliberately failed" to provide protection.

With dismissal of the complaint against Birmingham police and one of three Ku Klux Klan factions, who had been put under a temporary no-violence injunction after the rioting here, U.S. Dist. Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. still is considering possible action against Montgomery police and two other Klan organizations.

The government seeks to compel police to protect Freedom Riders in the future, and to continue the injunction against the Klans.

Although Johnson found no evidence to justify an injunction against Birmingham police, he warned that the Justice Department can renew its demand for court action "if things like this occur again."

There were racial developments elsewhere in the nation, too.

At Meridian, Miss., the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People filed a U.S. District Court suit to desegregate the all-white University of Mississippi at Oxford. It was Mississippi's first school desegregation suit.

U.S. Dist. Judge Irving R. Kaufman in New York City ordered the New Rochelle, N.Y., School Board to start desegregating a predominantly Negro school for the 1961-62 school year.

Jobs Picture Shows Some Improvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government Wednesday reported an expected seasonal increase in jobs in May. But there was no evidence that economic recovery has yet created any big demand in employment offices.

Employment rose by 1,044,000 to 66,783,000, down more than 400,000 from a year earlier.

Unemployment declined by 193,000 to 4,768,000, a figure about 1.3 million higher than a year ago.

Seymour Wolfheim, Labor Department manpower statistics chief, said that while there is evidence elsewhere that a sizable economic expansion is under way, "there has not been the job recovery we've been looking for."

Wolfheim said experience shows that job recovery always trails a production-sales pickup. A major reason for this is that employers generally assign more hours to workers who have been occupied only part time before hiring new workers.

The work force rose by 350,000 to 71,546,000 in May. The seasonally adjusted rate of unemployment to the total work force was 6.9 per cent, up a bit from the 6.8 rate in April.

Wolfheim attached no significance to this change except to note that the rate has stayed close to 7 per cent now for six straight months. Any marked decline in this figure would mean that job recovery has begun.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Forty one Afro-Asian nations and Yugoslavia Wednesday requested the Security Council "as a matter of urgency" to consider the situation in Portuguese Angola.

Two French Rebel Chiefs Get 15 Years

PARIS (UPI) — A special high tribunal Wednesday sentenced two former French generals to 15 years in prison as leaders of the Algeria insurrection against President Charles de Gaulle last month.

The court also ordered ex-Gens. Maurice Challe and Andre-Marie Zeller stripped of all decorations for their part in the uprising which threatened France with civil war.

The two generals were convicted of organizing an armed insurrection after a three-day trial. Maximum penalty on conviction is death, but the chief prosecutor said his conscience made it "impossible" for him to demand a death sentence.

Both Challe and Zeller already had been stripped of their military rank and pensions. The two had surrendered after the four-day revolt aimed at preventing what they called the "abandonment" of Algeria by France had collapsed.

Two other generals who helped mastermind the revolt are still at large.

The court decreed that the term would be "criminal detention" — a new French substitute for hard labor in which prisoners are subjected to a tougher regime than in ordinary prisons.

Both Challe and Zeller maintained they had acted only to prevent France from losing Algeria to the Moslem rebels. They denied they had any intention of invading metropolitan France as Premier Michel Debre had charged at the height of the revolt.

"I may have been wrong," Challe told the court, "but what I did I did for my country."

Memorial Day Weekend Auto Toll Sets Record

By United Press International
A smudgy, dog-eared chart Wednesday told in cold statistics—468 killed in 102 hours — the story of the most deadly Memorial Day weekend and second bloodiest summertime holiday in the nation's highway history.

Five days ago, on the eve of the four-day spring holiday, the chart was fresh and white and unmarked.

Wednesday it was crowded with little marks that stood for men, women and children and added to what Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council, called "brutal carnage."

The chart in United Press International's Chicago Bureau showed:

- 468 dead in traffic
- 105 drownings
- 3 killed in plane crashes
- 101 miscellaneous violent deaths

The overall death toll for the holiday, set aside to pay homage to the nation's war dead, was 677.

The traffic toll far surpassed the previous Memorial Day death record of 371 set in 1958. It was well above the pre-holiday estimate of 415 for the 1961 Memorial Day. And it exceeded the 461 traffic fatalities of the 1951 Labor Day weekend, until Wednesday listed as the second greatest summertime holiday traffic death toll.

Only a slowdown in the final hours of the holiday Tuesday kept the slaughter on the highways from toppling the death record for a summer holiday — the 491 fatalities on the weekend of July 4, 1950.

U.S. Troops Will Remain In Europe

Western Leaders
Take Tough Stand
Toward Red Threat

PARIS (AP) — President Kennedy asserted Wednesday night the United States will maintain forces in Europe "as long as they are required, ready to meet any threat with whatever response is needed."

The President made the statement in the prepared text of a banquet speech against a background of agreement with President Charles de Gaulle on an apparent granite-tough resistance to Soviet threats to provoke a new Berlin crisis.

The President, however, deleted these and other material statements relating to the firm policy from the speech he delivered at the banquet in the form of a toast to his host, President de Gaulle.

Andrew Hatcher, a White House press secretary, offered this explanation: "There is no significance to the omission of any portion of the text of the President's original toast. The statements were meant to explain the President's position."

Inappropriate Setting
Press secretary Pierre Salinger told a reporter the President evidently considered the social atmosphere of the dinner at the Elysee Palace an inappropriate setting for a statement of policy. But he added the remarks stand as a statement of policy.

Kennedy meets Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Vienna over the weekend against the background of the statement. He thus posed the prospect that U.S. troops will resist any Communist attempt to envelop West Berlin, which is isolated 110 miles inside Communist East Germany.

Kennedy and De Gaulle, a French spokesman said, reached complete identity of views at their first meeting Wednesday on Berlin. A U.S. spokesman added there was general agreement on the issue of the isolated city.

De Gaulle is known to advocate the toughest of stands — even to the risk of war — against Soviet pressure to drive the Western powers out of Berlin.

The agreement, a U.S. spokesman said, came in the first 35 minutes of private conversation between the two Western leaders. They met for another hour and 50 minutes later in the day and will have three hours of talks, in two sessions, Thursday.

Other Problems Discussed
White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said Kennedy and De Gaulle "discussed Berlin, problems of Southeast Asia and the Geneva conference on Laos, and touched in a preliminary way on African problems."

Khrushchev has threatened—perhaps this year—to sign a separate Soviet treaty with Communist East Germany which would have the effect of denying the rights of France, Britain and the United States to stay in West Berlin.

The meetings were described as having taken place in a most cordial atmosphere. President Kennedy himself said later, "We had a very fine meeting." Only interceptors were present. Staffs of advisers may join the two men Thursday or Friday.

Kennedy met later with members of the diplomatic corps and with a French parliamentary group. He told the latter that he believes in consultation with the government of France and closer U.S. relationship with France in the North Atlantic community. De Gaulle has been urging a formal summer consultation giving each nation equal voice in pursuing common world objectives.

The United States has not supported the sort of structure De Gaulle is advocating.

Temperatures Below Normal Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Weather Bureau said Wednesday it expects temperatures during the next 30 days to average below normal over most of the eastern half of the nation with greatest departures over the Midwest.

Above normal temperatures are predicted for Texas and for areas west of the Continental Divide except for near to below normal over the far Southwest.

Precipitation is expected to equal or exceed normal over most of the nation except for sub-normal amounts in the Pacific Northwest, the west Gulf states and the upper Great Lakes.

Board Of Education Approves Teacher Certification Plan

BALTIMORE (AP)—The State Board of Education Wednesday approved a plan which would require teachers with advanced professional certificates to ultimately earn a master's degree, or its equivalent.

The stiffened minimum standard was but one of a multitude of changes made in the first overhaul of the teacher certification program since it was inaugurated in 1922.

Jerome Frampton Jr. was re-elected president and Mrs. Kenneth S. Cole was named vice president as the board held its annual organizational meeting as part of the agenda.

The change in teacher certification has been under study for five years. The new by-law will affect 16,000 teachers in the 23 counties, but not Baltimore City teachers who come under a separate administration.

Under the plan, which goes into effect July 1, standard certificates will be issued to teachers with bachelor's degrees for the first three years of employment.

At the end of that time, teachers who have passed six additional hours of college credit would be eligible for a seven-year renewal.

To qualify for an advanced certificate at the end of the renewal period, a teacher must have obtained a master's degree or its equivalent. About one-half of the study must be professional courses or content courses related directly to the applicant's work, and the remainder in elective content courses.

Teachers who fail to qualify for the advanced certificate will be issued provisional certificates, subject to yearly renewal.

The provisional certificates will replace emergency certificates now given teachers who do not meet all requirements, including lack of a college degree.

Under current requirements, teachers also are given three-year certificates at the start. But they are renewed for four years the first time, and every six years thereafter. Six hours of credit are required at each renewal, but the credit may include travel or workshop instruction.

The new system excludes travel, and allows only six of the 34 required semester hours to be of the workshop, or inservice type.

Trujillo Death May Free U.S. Of Millstone

By STANFORD BRADSHAW

WASHINGTON (AP)—The end of the 31-year regime of Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo of the Dominican Republic may free the United States of a millstone in its inter-American relations.

It also could help the United States in its campaign to induce inter-American measures that could cause the overthrow of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime in Cuba.

But Trujillo's assassination nevertheless, poses grave problems for the United States, as well as for the other nations of the hemisphere.

The first question to be answered is who will succeed him.

A Dominican radio station, Radio Caribe, announced a decree ordering nine days of mourning. The radio said it was signed by President Joaquin Balaguer.

This would indicate that power in the Dominican Republic is continuing in the hands of elements aligned with Trujillo. Balaguer became president last August and has been closely identified with Trujillo.

Other fragmentary reports arriving from travelers who have just left the Dominican Republic indicate the Dominican army is in control.

Whether the army would step aside for a return to civilian control by elements which opposed Trujillo is not known.

These elements could include: —The middle class, which grew under Trujillo, but hated the iron hand with which he ruled the island. In January 1960, he uncovered a plot against him and jailed over 2,000 persons.

—Castro sympathizers and Communists, who also hated the iron hand, although Trujillo this year had been playing up to both, praising Castro's achievements on his Radio Caribe and making gestures toward the Soviet Union.

—Exiles, who have their own movement in the United States and Puerto Rico, and include members of the middle class and Castro sympathizers.

Brightwell Fund Drive Gets Boost

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP)—A fund drive to benefit the family of slain Patrolman Randolph Brightwell was given a boost Wednesday.

E. T. Clark, chairman of the fund drive, said that proceeds from a Randy Brightwell Fund, an annual fund drive at the Howard County Fair Grounds would go into the fund.

He said approval for rent-free use of the grounds was given by the Howard County Fair commissioners after Al Nardi, operator of some of the carnival amusements, offered to give all his proceeds to Brightwell's family.

Nardi's concessions will remain open at the fair grounds at West Friendship Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Pvt. Brightwell was fatally shot early Monday after he stopped a car near Ellicott City.

Charged in his slaying and the killing of service station attendant Charles F. Gallion were Robert B. Westcoat, 28, and Clarence Brindle Jr., 26, both of Catonsville.

Police say Gallion apparently was killed in the course of a robbery at the U. S. 40 service station where he worked.

The Howard County grand jury is scheduled to meet in special session Thursday to air the charges against Westcoat and Brindle.

17 Youngsters Survive First Day Of National Spelling Bee

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Seventeen of the nation's sharpest spellers Wednesday weathered such words as "vellicate" and "concatenate" to get by the first day of the 34th national spelling bee.

Fifty-six fellow contestants were not so lucky. That many fell by the wayside under a barrage of 351 words that became trickier as the day wore on.

Each of the survivors spelled 11 words correctly. Those eliminated lasted from two to 11 rounds. Words of French origin played a major part in downing the losers.

The youngest entrant — 10-year-old Steven Palmer of Vernon, Tex. — survived by correctly spelling such words as "purdah" and "acrimonious."

Many of the youngsters spelled words that they apparently had never heard before. They asked the pronouncer for a slow repeat and then attempted to work out the spelling by figuring out the derivatives.

The word "vellicate" was properly spelled by Joanne Kraut, a 12-year-old from Erie, Pa. It means "to twitch."

Each of the contestants wore a numbered placard. When his turn arrived he approached one of two microphones — set at different heights for different sized youngsters — and heard his word stated by Dr. Richard Baker, professor of philosophy at the University of Dayton, Dayton, Ohio.

The contestants, who ranged in age from 10 to 15 years old, were competing for the top prize of $1,000 in cash and a weekend trip to New York City.

The bee is sponsored by 18 Scripps-Howard and 54 other daily and Sunday newspapers.

Those still in the running and who will compete Thursday are Karen Grimm, 13, Reistertown, Md., who is participating in her second national spelling contest; Janie Forsyth, 12, Anniston, Ala.; David Gilmer, 14, Las Cruces, N.M.; Robert H. Vaughan, 13, West Newbury, Mass.; Gayle Fehr, 13, Covington, Ky.; also a repeater; Delight Ousley, 11, Rockford, Tenn.; Linda Gay Burkett, 13, Andrews, Tex.; Michael Sarette, 12, Cloquet, Minn.; Nicolette Petroff, 12, Milford, Conn.

petitions. They are not to be taken up at the special session.

One was a bill opposed by the League of Women Voters which would have created a new congressional district from Prince Georges and Howard counties. League officials filed 29,650 names, more than enough to ensure automatic delay of the bill until November, 1962.

Labor leaders filed 9,278 signatures against a measure tightening requirements for unemployment compensation. The bill also would have boosted the weekly maximum for jobless benefits from $35 to $38. More signatures will be necessary before July 1 to force the referendum next year.

Baltimore County opponents of a bill which would let parochial school students ride public school buses were the first to arrive Wednesday. They presented 20,774 signatures although they needed only 12,952.

Dorchester County watermen blocked a bill which would have banned any further leasing of oyster ground in the county to private planters. Counsel for the Seafood Worker's Association presented 1,432 signatures. Only 867 were required to force a referendum on that local bill.

But the petitions most anxiously awaited were those Pollack forces had been gathering in Baltimore. These were the two bills Gov. Tawes had labeled "urgent" in nature and said new legislation would be necessary to circumvent the petition drives.

Pollack hinted that any new legislation enacted in their place will be subject to legal tests "all the way up to the Supreme Court."

Asked why he brought the petitions in an armored truck, Pollack said he was protecting the rights of citizens under the State Constitution to force a referendum on a legislative act.

Schmidt Named As Police Head At Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gov. Tawes Wednesday named Inspector Bernard J. Schmidt as new police commissioner of Baltimore.

Schmidt, now in charge of the traffic division, will succeed James M. Hepbron, whose term expired Wednesday. However, Hepbron will continue in office until September 1.

Schmidt will serve until June 1, 1967.

Tawes said his decision to postpone the effective date of Schmidt's appointment was made at the suggestion of Hepbron, who asked to be allowed to finish some uncompleted work.

The governor and Hepbron, who was appointed by former Republican Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin, had conferred earlier in Annapolis.

Tawes said he believed the postponement in the change of command would make for a smoother transition. He said he would ask Hepbron to give Schmidt some of the responsibilities for carrying out the incomplete tasks Hepbron mentioned.

phonic communication with Ciudad Trujillo has been cut off most of Wednesday.

Haiti, which is beside the Dominican Republic on the Island of Hispaniola across a strait from Cuba, in the Caribbean, put its army on full alert. The frontier was closed, and militia units called up at Port au Prince.

The slaying raised speculation in Latin America as to what part if any followers of Cuba's Fidel Castro might have had in the developments. For a time early in his career as Cuban chief, Castro encouraged efforts to invade the Dominican Republic. But recently there were signs that Trujillo and Castro were seeing more eye to eye in mutual distrust of Washington.

The United States has broken diplomatic relations with both Cuba and the Dominican Republic.

The Dominican break came on the recommendation of the Organization of American States — largely at U. S. urging — to apply penalties against the Trujillo regime because of its thwarting of civil liberties.

Jobless Pay Benefits Drop In Maryland

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Department of Employment Security said jobless pay benefits paid to Marylanders during April dropped sharply for the second successive month.

April payments of $5 million represented a drop of 23.5 per cent from the $6.5 million of March, but still were 22 per cent above the $4 million level of April 1960.

Stephen C. Cromwell, the department's executive director designate, said while much of the improvement was season and related mainly to increased construction employment, there were also more moderate, extra-seasonal gains in hard-goods manufacturing.

During April another 3,501 Marylanders exhausted the full 26 weeks of benefits to which they were entitled, bringing the 12-month total to 30,253.

The Irrawaddy River, in Burma, is navigable for some 900 miles.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—It's kid stuff, but adults just love to be scared to death on amusement park rides.

More than fun's involved, says a psychologist who's figured why Americans pay more than $300 million a year for the thrill rides.

"The ride whirling dangerously along beyond the rider's control seems to duplicate people's feelings about their own lives," Dr. Morton Bard said, "lives in which big companies, big unions, big government are dominant factors beyond the individual's control."

The ride, too, seems beyond control, though the rider knows it is safe and that it can be stopped. It's an adventure, with a known outcome. The ride stops. The riders get off, breathless and a bit scared but otherwise unaffected at the end.

"The outcome of the world's whirling progression, on the other hand, is unknown," Bard said. "The ride, then, becomes a way of reassuring oneself that one is not powerless in the hands of fate."

Bard, a consulting psychologist, probed the psychological implications of thrill rides in a report to the National Association of Amusement Parks, Pools and Beaches (NAAPPB).

Among the riders, it was noted, are some who feel impelled to test themselves: People who are afraid of heights, for example, but who need to keep on braving them.

The satisfaction such folks get from a high ride is akin to biting down on a sore tooth. It feels so good when you stop.

Two other factors enter into the centuries-old popularity of thrill rides, according to other psychologists.

The factors: Release of repressions and the romantic element. The psychologists claim you're expected to scream and be scared reys. Many rides back then threw riders into each others' arms.

Even today, the violent motion of many rides drives the blood to the surface, throws people against each other—and it's all socially acceptable.

More to the point, however, psychologists report that such action provides justification for a girl to be scared and feminine and helpless—and for a man to be more manly. He does this by letting her know that there's nothing to be scared of.

The romantic element was a bigger factor in the days of ice cream parlors and fringed sur-

Sets Trial Date

NEW YORK (UPI)—Special sessions Judge Edward Breslin Wednesday set Sept. 25 as the trial date for one of the 18 defendants charged with perjury in denying to a grand jury that TV quiz shows were fixed.

Breslin indicated that one of the former quiz show contestants will go on trial as a test case for the others. Five of the defendants—David Mayer, Patricia Nance,

Small Contracts Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Small business administrator John E. Horne reported this week that prime contracts awarded to small firms under the agency's set-aside program rose 39.5 per cent in value last month over April, 1960.

He said small firms received 2,700 contracts valued at $107,224,249, compared with 2,167 contracts for $76,852,311 during April 1960.

Trial Of Six On Marihuana Charges Opens

BALTIMORE (AP) — The trial of six men charged with violation of federal narcotics laws opened Wednesday in U.S. District Court.

Most of the opening session involved selection of a jury and setting ground rules for eight defense attorneys.

The defendants, three of them from the Eastern Shore of Maryland, were charged along with four other persons after federal and state agents seized 458 pounds of unfried marihuana last Sept. 28 near Salisbury.

All were indicted, but two persons, Mr. and Mrs. George Copes Jr. of Philadelphia, have pleaded guilty and are expected to testify for the government.

In addition, Hampton T. Doane, 70, and Herbert J. Morris, 51, both of Princess Anne, will be tried separately on charges of unlawfully obtaining 78 pounds of marihuana.

Chief District Judge Roszel C. Thomsen set aside Thursday and Thursday next week for hearing of the case involving these defendants.

James Randolph, 30, Maurice W. Woolford, 42, and William L. Sawyer, 29, all of New York; John Woolford, 69, Denton; Nathaniel Doane, 34, Salisbury; and Melvin C. Hutt, 39, Salisbury.

All were charged with conspiring to violate federal narcotics law, unlawfully acquiring and transporting drugs, and aiding and abetting.

The government contends the marihuana, worth about $50,000, was grown on a Somerset County farm last summer. It was seized after agents stopped a foreign-made vehicle they suspected was transporting untaxed liquor.

Lutheran Church Merger Approved By Md. Synod

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — The 142nd convention of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Maryland voted overwhelming approval Wednesday of a merger of the four American branches of Lutheranism.

The merger, to become effective in July of 1962, would join the United Lutheran Church in America, the Augustana Lutheran Church, the American Evangelical Lutheran Church, and the U. S. Synod. All would be combined into the Lutheran Church in America.

The proposal already had been approved by a sufficient number of synods for ratification before the Maryland group acted.

The vote here was 190 to 35, with three delegates abstaining.

Arundel Will Prosecute Blue Law Violators

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Anne Arundel County state's attorney said Wednesday he will prosecute Sunday closing law violators. Officials of a large chain store in Glen Burnie said the store would continue to sell on Sunday despite a pending indictment against its operations.

State's Atty. C. Osborne Duvall said the indictment would be brought to court now that the U.S. Supreme Court has upheld as constitutional Maryland's 1958 Sunday closing laws, commonly called the "blue laws."

The Maryland law does not require stores to be closed on Sundays, but limits items which can be sold.

Herbert Hubschman, president of Vornado Inc. of Garfield, N.J., operator of the Glen Burnie branch of Two Guys, said the store is "basically operated in accordance with the Sunday blue laws" and will remain open.

In making its ruling Monday, the Supreme Court upheld the conviction of eight employees of Two Guys who were fined $5 each in 1958 for violating Anne Arundel's blue law.

The Anne Arundel County law, which governs the Glen Burnie area, has been amended since the 1958 arrests.

The existing county law permits stores to remain open for business on Sunday if they are staffed only by an official and one clerk.

After that provision became effective, Two Guys took out individual licenses for each of its departments and staffed them with a manager and a single clerk.

Duvall obtained an indictment against the Two Guys new practice last year, but held up prosecution until the Supreme Court handed down its decision.

Worst Md. Storms Pass To West Of Bay

SOLOMONS, Md. (AP) — The most destructive storms to Maryland generally are the ones which pass to the west of Chesapeake Bay.

That is the conclusion of weathermen who have studied the patterns of hurricanes in Maryland from 1929 through 1958.

Arthur Pore of the U.S. Weather Bureau's Office of Meteorological Research, writing in the Chesapeake Science magazine, cited a hurricane which passed near Frederick in 1933 as Maryland's most destructive storm.

Striking on Aug. 23, 1933, that storm passed 40 miles inland from Baltimore, but caused $17 million damage to the Chesapeake Bay area. Highest tides were in Baltimore.

Pore concluded in the article, published by the State Department of Research and Education, that hurricanes passing east of the bay have less effect on the Maryland area because, in those cases, the tidal surge usually is centered in the southern bay.

Md. Municipal League Session Opens June 11

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — The Maryland Municipal League will hold its 13th annual conference at Ocean City June 11-13.

President George M. Miller, mayor of Takoma Park, said the theme of the conference will be "community facilities development."

Gov. Tawes will be among the many dignitaries addressing the conference. Other scheduled speakers include Harry A. Boswell Jr., chairman of the Maryland Economic Development Commission; Sidney H. Woolner, commissioner of the Community Facilities Administration, Housing and Home Finance Agency; and Mayor Don Hummel, of Tucson, Ariz., president of the American Municipal Association.

Three members of the Maryland General Assembly — Sen. Frederick C. Malkus, D-Dorchester; Sen. Harry Hughes, D-Caroline; and Del. Carlton Sickles, D-Prince Georges — will also speak at the two-day conference.

The organization will make an award to the state official of the year at the meeting's closing luncheon.

LONDON (UPI) — The Financial Times said this week it was not surprised that the International Tin Council, at its meeting last week, ignored suggestions that the "ceiling price" of 880 pounds ($2,464) a ton should be raised, which believes in a shortage of an editorial said the existing metal.

Times Not Surprised

agreement has only a month to run "and in any case pushing the price of relief stocks upwards is little remedy for a market ($2,464) a ton should be raised, which believes in a shortage of an editorial said the existing metal."

Maryland News In Brief

BALTIMORE (AP) — A major step in private renewal of downtown Baltimore was taken Wednesday with start of demolition of the former Hub department store.

The store extended a block on Charles Street between Baltimore and Fayette, a 30-story office building will be erected on the site.

The new building is expected to be ready for occupancy in the fall of next year.

SOMERSET, Md. (AP) — This town wants to share the cost of converting into a public park a 32-acre tract on one of its boundaries. The tract has been threatened with commercial development.

Somerset is a town with 384 homes near the northwest edge of Washington.

Mayor Warren Jay Vinton of Somerset said the town was willing to share with the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission the cost of acquiring the tract on the town's southern boundary, on Wisconsin Avenue between Washington and Bethesda.

Cost of the property would be determined in court condemnation proceedings.

ELKTON, Md. (AP) — J. P. Zearley, supervisor of message and cost control for the Pennsylvania Railroad, was struck and killed by a train near here Wednesday.

A railroad spokesman said Zearley apparently was inspecting facilities along the track and failed to hear the warning whistle.

Weissberg Chain Buys Emerson Hotel

BALTIMORE (AP) — Owners of the Lord Baltimore Hotel announced Wednesday they had bought the Emerson Hotel.

This gave the H. R. Weissberg Corporation of New York ownership of two of the three large hotels in downtown Baltimore. It bought the Lord Baltimore last year from $7.2 million.

The Emerson Hotel was bought from Meyer Hotels, Inc., of Birmingham, Ala., for approximately $3.5 million.

The Weissberg chain of hotels includes four in New York City, one in Miami Beach and another in Fort Worth.

The Lord Baltimore was opened in 1928, the Emerson in 1911.

State's Holiday Toll Sets Record

By The Associated Press

The 1961 Memorial Day weekend in Maryland produced the state's highest fatality total for that holiday — 15 deaths.

The death of a Cecil County man Tuesday near Elkton brought the weekend toll to nearly double the eight killed during the weekend last year.

State Police identified that victim as Norman Ellis Tweed, 34, of Elkton, who died after he fell from a motor scooter into the path of a car on Maryland 7.

Included in the weekend traffic toll were 10 deaths on the Eastern Shore, where a pair of two-car collisions took five lives.

Wall Street ViewsBy JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The slow-down on the stock market seems more like just another normal temporary pause than the start of an extended setback, a Wall Street analyst comments.

The opinion comes from Kenneth Ward of Hayden, Stone & Co. who believes the reaction should not carry below the 670-675 area on the Dow Jones industrial average.

When the market closed Friday for the four-day Memorial Day weekend, the average stood at 696.28.

Ward observes that individual investors and the over-all market appear to be confronted by four main problems:

1. The increasingly complex and worsening international situation.

2. The outcome of discussions scheduled between labor and the automobile industry.

3. The attitude of the consumer toward a steel price increase which seems bound to come in 1962, and how this and other product price hikes will influence our competitive position with the lower-cost and lower-taxed nations of the world.

4. The fact that very few of the benefits which normally are derived from higher corporate sales have trickled down to net profit so far.

"As opposed to these somewhat negative factors," says Ward, "gradually rising steel production is having a favorable influence on soft coal output, brass mill products are in better demand, new home sales are picking up and auto production and rail freight shipments are improving. Such rising production should be reflected in improved profit margins pretty soon."

With the business recovery only now starting to gather momentum and with government spending in an uptrend, a constructive attitude toward the stock market seems fully warranted, says Walter Mintz of Shearson, Hamill & Co.

He takes this attitude despite the market's sharp advance in the past six months and the fact

Controversial Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Steps Up To New, Vital Role

A foreigner is not allowed to enter West Point or Annapolis except by a special act of Congress.

Editor's Note: Politics have always produced strange bedfellows. But rarely have they come up with a more surprising situation than that facing the Kennedy administration: a key man in squeezing its legislation through Congress is Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr., the debonair Baptist preacher from Harlem. Here's a look at this controversial, lone-wolf congressman, now a squad leader on the march to the New Frontier.

By ARTHUR EDSON
AP Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—On only a few points can the unrelenting and fiercely partisan friends of Rep. Adam C. Powell, D-N.Y., ever agree:

No other congressman, they all will admit, is as controversial as this urbane, immaculate, 6-foot-3 1/2-year-old Baptist preacher from Harlem.

No other congressman has squabbled with so many influential citizens, regardless of race, color or creed.

No other congressman has had such a uniformly bad press.

He was asked recently if he agreed that no other legislator has had so many unpleasant words written about him.

"That's true," he said. "That's true." He smiled, half ruefully, half triumphantly, like a baseball manager who has just been told he leads the league in times kicked out by the umpire.

Now, by one of those quirks that make politics so everlastingly interesting, Powell has stepped up to a new and vital role.

As chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, he holds the key to what happens to much of President Kennedy's legislative program, including federal aid to education.

Rep. Graham A. Barden, D-N.C., the former chairman, retired Jan. 3 after 26 years in Congress, which left Powell with the most seniority on the committee.

In a twinkling, as time is measured in legislative circles, Congress' leading lone wolf became not only a team member but a squad leader to boot.

It's far too early to mark up a report card on Chairman Powell and his efforts to prod legislation through a balky Congress that seems to divide almost evenly on all but routine legislation.

But whenever congressional shop talk is being made, you'll hear almost as much about the new Adam Clayton Powell Jr., as you will about the New Frontier.

Powell, you'll be told, has his subcommittees' work well planned, has delegated authority carefully and has everything humming. (Conservatives think he has it humming in the wrong direction.)

Powell's elevation to chairman was not greeted with shouts of joy in the South or in some areas of the North.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, said "It's terrible to think we'll have a man like that as chairman of the House Labor Committee."

But a lesser union official, paid Powell took his master's degree to keep an eye on such things, says: "I'll tell you this about Adam: He has been working night and day since he became chairman. I think he's doing an excellent job."

In view of Powell's reputation as a master work-dodger, was the AFL-CIO man surprised?

"Surprised?" he said. "I'm amazed!"

The man who can create amazement merely by buckling down to work has been in Congress for 16 years, a period in which most congressmen would have settled comfortably into a convenient pigeon hole—and comparative obscurity.

Powell isn't—or, until now, has not been—the settling down kind.

His life is crisscrossed with violent contrasts: a Negro who is as light skinned as many white men, a man of God who is also called a playboy, a congressman who was accused of breaking tax laws passed by Congress.

Few congressmen are as adept as latching on to a headline: none has reaped such a strange harvest.

Here are a few descriptions of Powell that have appeared in print.

"Rabble rouser of the North," "dangerous charlatan," "Ladies' man," "least influential member in Congress," "matinee idol of the pulpit," "phantom congressman," "racist."

Why has he had such an unfavorable reception?

"Because," he said, "they did not understand me."

He was born Nov. 29, 1908, in New Haven, Conn. Soon after, the family moved to New York where his father, the Rev. Adam Clayton Powell Sr., took over the Abyssinian Baptist church, which dates back to 1808.

Adam Jr. properly belongs to Harlem and, as election after election has proved, Harlem belongs to him.

After graduating from Colgate, Powell took his master's degree at Columbia. He became manager of his father's church, then assistant minister. When his father retired in 1936, he took over a going organization that now has more than 10,000 members and owns property worth $70,000.

As it turned out, the eloquent young preacher got not only a ready-made pulpit, he also inherited what was to be an intensely loyal political base.

In 1941 he was elected to the New York City Council. In 1945 he came to Congress.

Politically he has touched all the bases.

Years ago Powell said: "Under Father Abraham, the Negro was blindly Republican, and under Father Franklin he has been blindly Democratic. Those were big mistakes."

In his early days, he flirted with the far left.

In 1956, he swung over and worked for Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Last fall he campaigned enthusiastically for John F. Kennedy. These political meanderings have never bothered the home folks.

In 1958 Tammany Hall tried to dump Powell because, Carmine G. DeSapio said, he had deserted the Democrats two years earlier. States June 8-10, the White House Rarely has a political machine announced Wednesday.

so miscalculated. Powell beat another Negro who was Tammany's choice by 14,837 votes to 4,935.

The campaign is chiefly memorable because Powell managed to get himself denounced by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, of which he's a lifetime member.

Bookie's Sentence For "Sure Thing" Scheme Upheld

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A one-picaresque story of a fraud effectively perpetrated upon one man in a scheme designed to make winners out of horse race bettors — regardless of the race's outcome — was upheld by the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals this week.

A Norfolk, Va., man was cheated out of $8,500 by the convicted bookmaker, Adam Bagdasian of Baltimore. The court said Bagdasian approached E. R. Culpeper of Norfolk and John Allen of Newport News separately and told them he was George Simon, employed as the manager for a bookmaker. Bagdasian told them, according to court papers, that he was in a position to cheat his employer by changing office records after horse races had been run, so as to make it appear the bets had been placed on winning horses.

Ever add turnips, along with the usual onion, carrots and celery to folk and John Allen of Newport pot roast?

Maryland To Go Slow On Boosting High School Credits

BALTIMORE (AP) — A State Department of Education official says Maryland won't be stampeded into demanding more credits for graduation from its public high schools.

Maryland may decide to keep its present 16-credit graduation requirement, said Dr. David W. Zimmerman, assistant state superintendent of schools. He expressed the view Tuesday after the Office of Education in Washington reported a trend toward requiring 17 or more units. Pointing out that students frequently graduate with 18 to 20 units, Dr. Zimmerman said: "We don't want to be too rigid. credit requirements more difficult. Yet we want to hold high standards. What would you do with a transfer student minus one credit, graduation—from state to state and asked Dr. Zimmerman, 'Make city to city—would make higher him take an extra year.'"

Military-Industrial Complex Raises Two Major Questions

EDITOR'S NOTE — A great military-industrial complex is one of the necessities of the cold war. But two presidents have warned that its influence on the nation's life must not become excessive. Here is a revealing study of this giant network of military, economic, and political relationships.

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twice within a 60-day period a different president of the United States expressed concern over the role of the military in the life of the nation.

It can now be reported on high authority that President Kennedy took office convinced that the military establishment had obtained greater power than was desirable.

And in his final statement as president, Dwight D. Eisenhower cautioned: "In the councils of government we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence... by the military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rule of misplaced power exists and will persist."

President Kennedy declared in his March 28 special message on the defense budget: "Neither our strategy nor our psychology as a nation — and certainly not our economy — must become dependent upon the permanent maintenance of a large military establishment." He added: "Our arms must be subject to civilian control at all times."

At the President's direction, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara moved quickly to put a lid on saber-rattling speeches by ranking military officers.

Two big questions are raised by the expressions of presidential concern over the role of the military establishment in the nation's economy and affairs.

1. Is there an interlocking alliance, perhaps an unwitting one, among military, industrial and political interests in which the national interest could be subordinated?

2. Is the real danger of excessive influence by the gigantic military-industrial complex? What, is the military-industrial complex and how does it function?

Primarily, it owes its enormous scope to the cold war which has compelled the nation to maintain large professional armed services and a huge defense budget. Four major factors are involved:

1. The big spending by the Defense Department and the channeling of these funds.

2. The ramifications of defense spending in all segments of the economy.

3. The relationship between the military and Congress. Congressmen have vital interest in whether, and how much, defense money is spent. Congress also must keep an eye on the over-all operation.

4. The relationship between the armed services, defense contractors, service organizations, procurement officers and others.

Drawing upon a number of sources and official documents, let's fill in the picture in some detail.

The Defense Department now spends about $42 billion annually, or more than 50 per cent of the total national budget.

Roughly $21 billion of the total is allocated by the department for the procurement of goods.

The subcommittee on defense procurement of the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, chaired by Sen. Paul Douglas, D. Ill., estimates that the Defense Department spends twice as much on procurement as the entire nation spends on public education.

The Defense Department says it employs 3½ million persons directly, including 947,000 civilians, and has an annual payroll of $11 billion.

That is more than twice the annual payroll of the entire automobile industry.

While there are no precise figures available on how many persons are employed in defense industries, there are rough estimates that the number is between three and four millions.

Of the $21 billion set aside for procurement, about $15.4 billion is being spent with 100 giant corporations, according to the defense department.

About half of the $15.4 billion, or $7.6 billion, is being spent with 10 of these huge corporations alone.

Now for one final figure: 86.4 per cent of the $21 billion procurement total is being handed out by military officers to industry without competitive bidding.

The military insist that national security needs make these non-competitive contract awards necessary.

Since 1947 Congress has been recommending that the system of awarding contracts without competitive bidding, and with little regard to the values in the open market, be abandoned save in extremely rare instances. But the practice continues.

The records of Congress are not only filled with examples of the Defense Department's refusal to supply information but even, in some instances, examples of misinformation.

In 1958 the House Freedom of Information Committee, headed by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., cited a large number of such refusals and then reported: "The Department of Defense has evolved a policy... under which officials are claiming the right to determine what information Congress shall and shall not have."

For some years Congress has sought to force the Defense Department to set up a system whereby all the services use a single manager system of procurement, especially for common-use items.

There are 738 military installations in 282 of the country's 437 congressional districts. This figure does not include defense plants.

Discussions on whether to maintain these military installations at their present strength, whether to close them altogether, or reduce them in size are matters for military recommendation.

What defense plan is going to get what business handed it by a procurement officer is also a matter for military recommendation.

In brief, matters which can affect the economic welfare of a large number of congressional districts are matters of military recommendation at times.

The award or cancellation of defense contracts often can have an enormous impact on congressional districts. A $500-million cut back in the Bomarc missile production forced the layoff of 2,700 employees in one district alone.

In June, 1960, Sen. Douglas declared in a Senate speech: "There is a great danger of high officers leaving the armed services and going into the service of big contractors and thereafter dealing with their former comrades."

The impact of the defense budget on congressional districts often can be measured by outraged reactions to cutbacks.

When President Kennedy proposed curtailment in the B70 supersonic bomber program, Rep. Edgar W. Hiestand, R-Calif., called it "a serious economic error as well as a blow to national security." The B70 is being developed in the district represented by Hiestand, a conservative and frequent critic of government spending.

The military-industrial complex offers complexities enough.

To Expand Plant

SKOKIE, Ill. (UPI)—International Minerals & Chemical Corp. Wednesday announced it will spend $3.8 million to expand its phosphate chemicals plant in Bonnie, Fla., allowing it to manufacture 100,000 tons a year of a new nitrogenous product.

Martin Co. Begins Airlifting Atom Plant To Peak

BALTIMORE (AP) — Airlifting of 16 prefabricated parts of its first nuclear power plant was started this week from the Martin Co. Airport here.

The 15-ton parts are being flown some 1,700 miles west for assembly on a remote Wyoming mountain top near Sundance, Wyo., site of an Air Force radar station.

Produced by the Martin Co. under contract with the Atomic Energy Commission, the plant is designed to operate for two years at full power from a nuclear core the size of an oil drum.

The power station will generate 1,000 kilowatts of electricity, enough for a town of 2,000 persons. It also will produce steam heat for Air Force buildings.

Bringing Up Baby.

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Good sandman habits can be formed early if you make the land of nod a pleasant place to visit. If you set the same hour and be reasonably firm in sticking to it, baby will accept this routine. Then see to it that baby has a dry bottom, a full tummy and a favorite cuddle toy (if he's old enough). The lilt of a lullaby or sweet mother talk will usually turn a wide-awake into a sleepyhead.

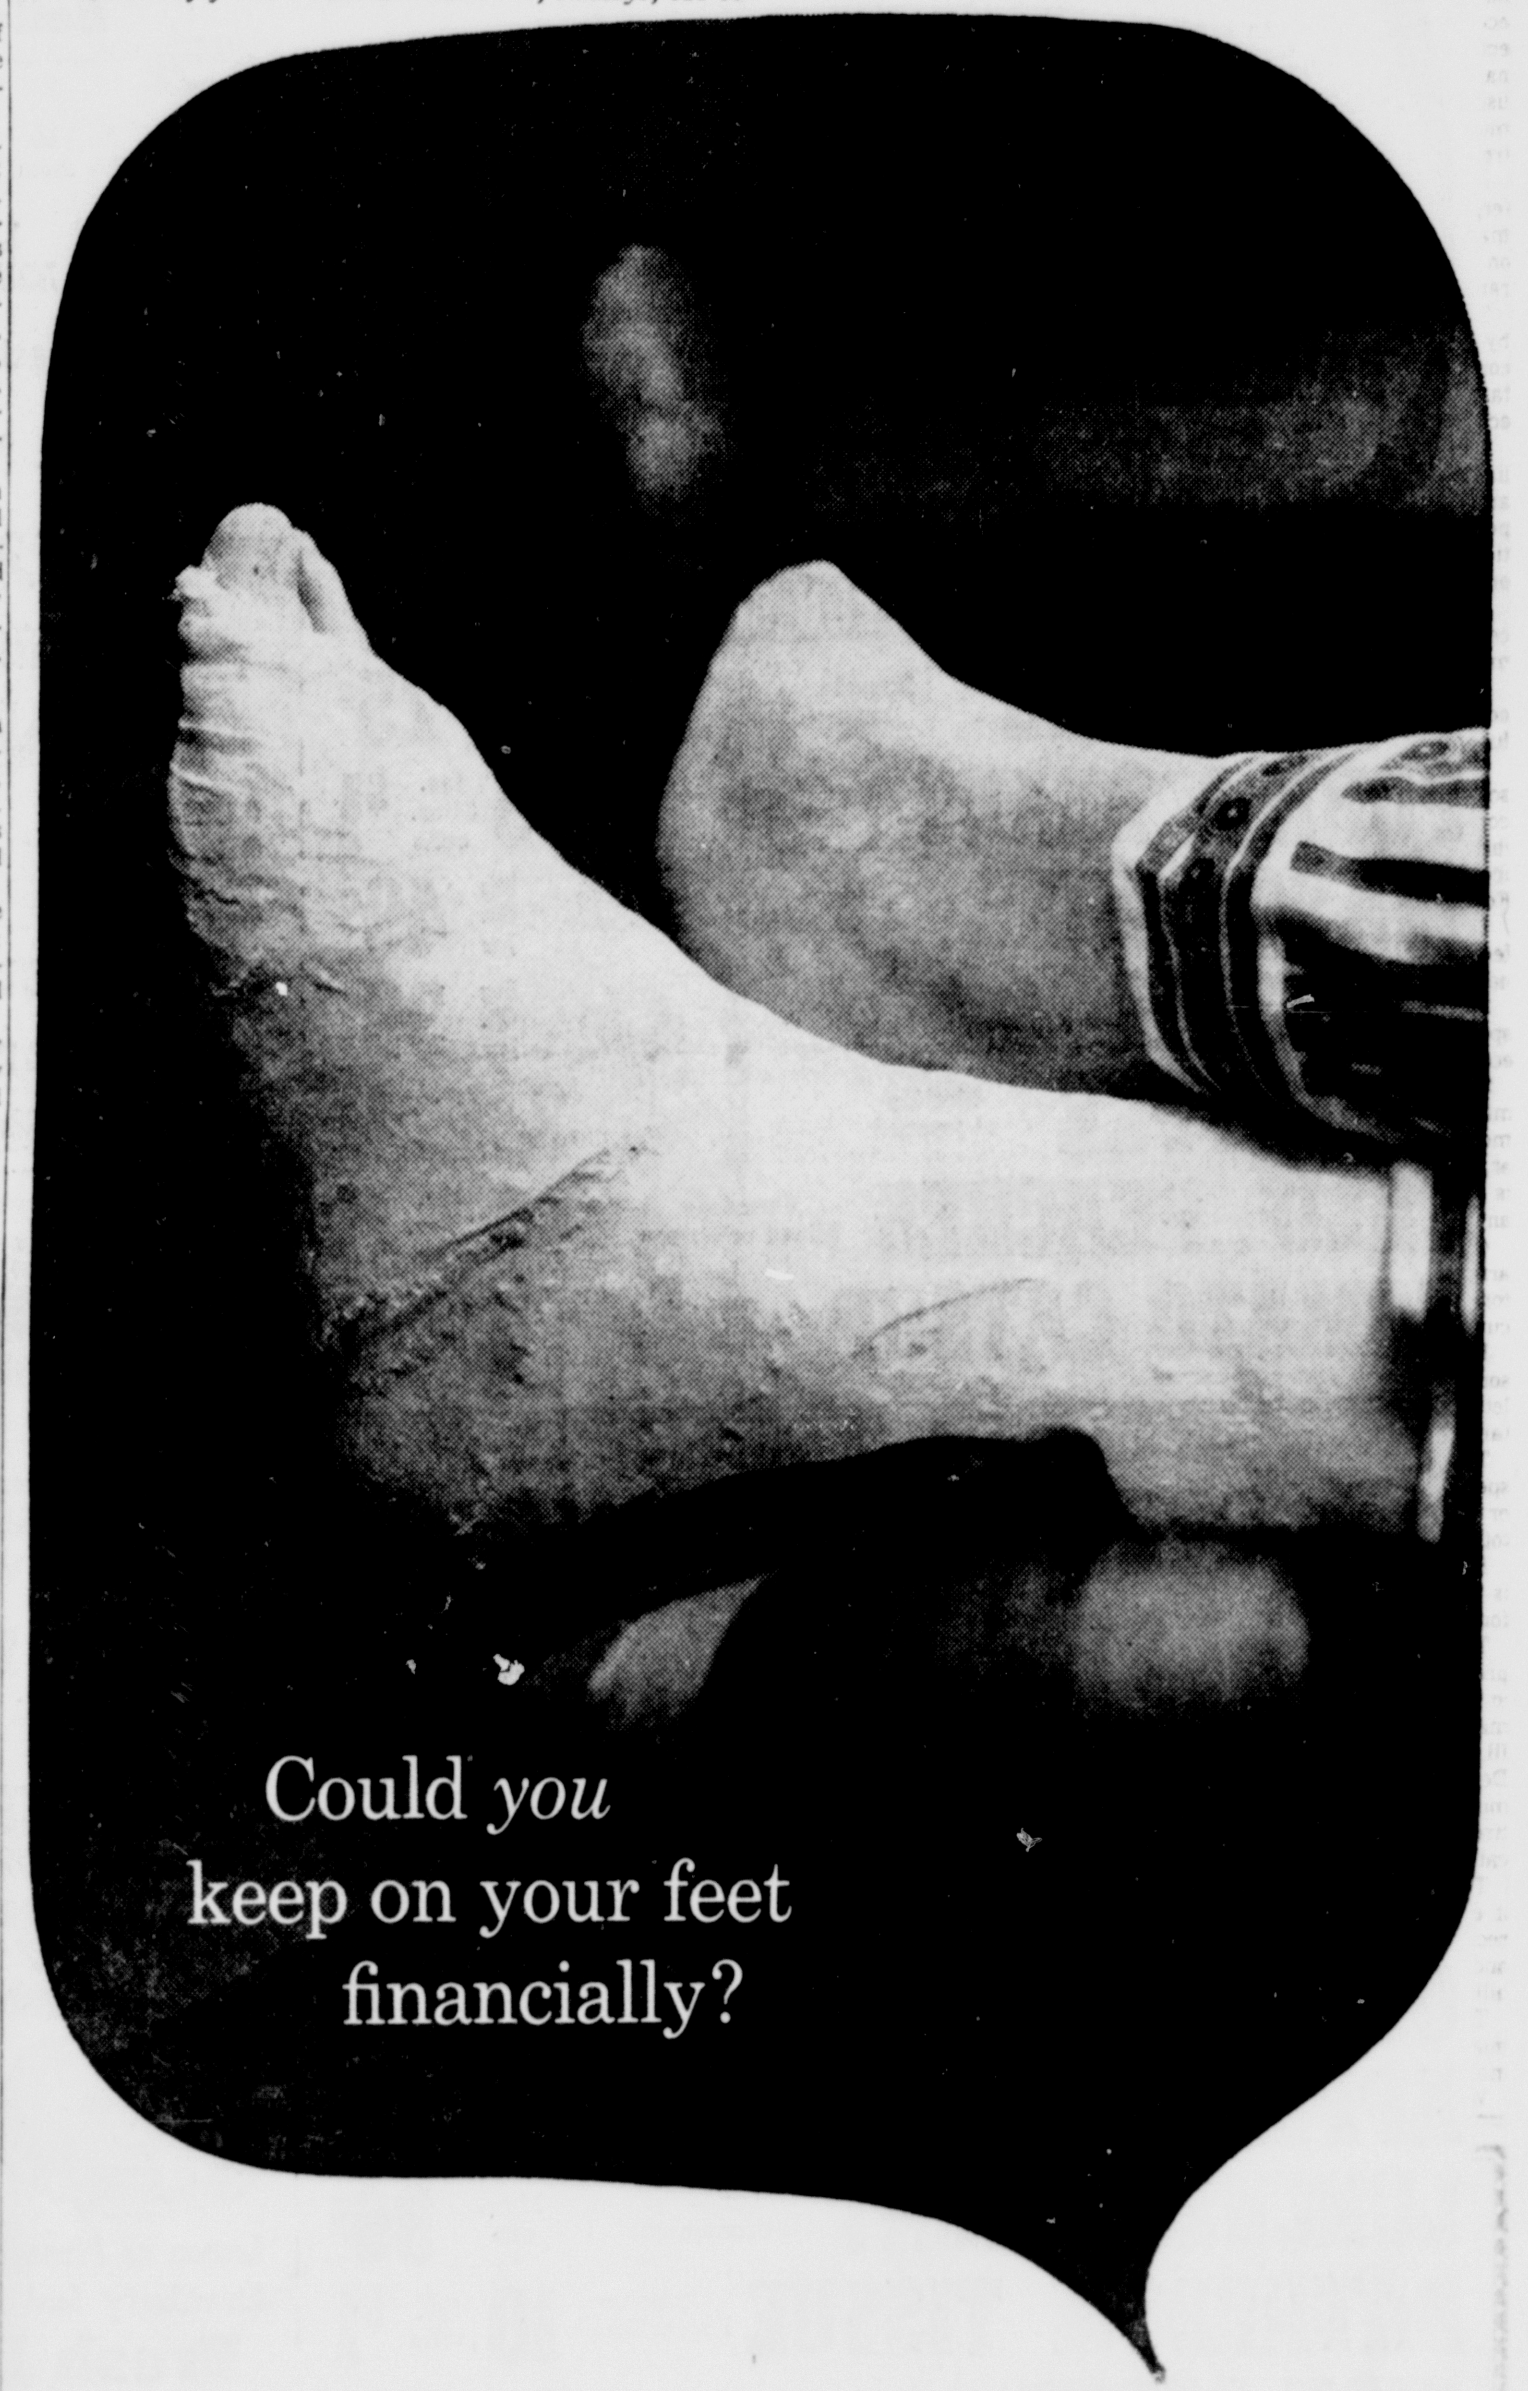

Good feeding strategy when introducing new foods: It's a good idea to offer only one at a time and wait a few days before trying another. Give baby a chance to get used to the new flavor.

Easy does it! If baby's mealtime is relaxed, there's no doubt that baby will enjoy his food more. And that very enjoyment will make him want to eat more. Best way I know to start off a meal: substitute grin for grim.

Pleasant mealtime are practically assured when you serve food to baby's liking. Gerber Cereals, for example, are made to please a tiny palate. Each variety has a mild but distinctive flavor... all have the dreamy smooth texture that inspires smiles. (And they stir to creamy perfection in seconds.) What about nutrition? Gerber Cereals give your baby blood - building iron, energy-giving calories, important B-vitamins and bone-building calcium. What baby wouldn't thrive on such nutritional fare?

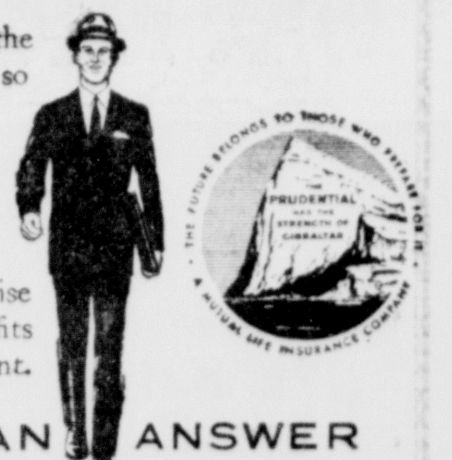

Your heir or heiress will "lick the platter clean" when his bill of fare features Gerber Strained Foods. Why? Because the flavors are fresh-tasting and mild, the texture smooth, moist and marvelous-to-the-tongue. Over 50 tempting varieties, all designed with appetite appeal in mind. Serve one and all to the tune of blissful coos. Rotate foods for guaranteed meal appeal. Has baby tried the new Strained Ham, yet? Gerber Baby Foods, Fremont, Michigan.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother was having company for dinner and she baked a beautiful angel food cake and put it on the kitchen table to cool. When nobody was looking, our cat Bessie jumped up on the table and she ate a good-sized hunk out of the cake before anyone could stop her.

My mother got very mad when she caught Bessie at it and hit her with a dish towel. I tried to protect my little pet and caught a few lashes myself. I tried to explain that it wasn't Bessie's fault and that Mom should not have left the cake where she could get at it.

Mom says Bessie knew perfectly well that she was doing something wrong. Please, Miss Landers, tell me if Bessie really knew what she was doing?—BESSIE'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: When a cat sees a cake he doesn't think of right or wrong. He thinks only of cake.

Your mother should not have put the cake where Bessie could get at it. Next time suggest she put it on top of the refrigerator.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several weeks ago our son married a girl we knew nothing about. He phoned to tell us they had eloped. They are both in their middle 20s and we felt they were old enough to know what they were doing.

Last week he phoned again to say they were starting out in a second hand car, and hoped they would "make it." Since it's a 2,500-mile trip, we were quite worried. A few days later we got a postcard saying the car had broken down 1,000 miles from here and they didn't know what they would do.

At 4 this morning they showed up at the front door. I was dead-tired, looked a mess and very much annoyed with my son for waking us at that ungodly hour to meet our new daughter-in-law for the first time.

My son sensed that I was upset and said a mother ought to be glad to welcome her children at any hour of the day or night. I say a decent son would have had better sense. He could have gone to a motel less than two miles from our home. He's far from broke. What do you say?—E.D.J.

DEAR E.D.J.: I agree with you that your son showed poor judgment and no consideration. He should have given you a few hours warning.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife insists that she is socially correct, and even though I've never read a book on etiquette, my common sense tells me she's wrong.

Is it proper to leave the manufacturer's label on fancy cut-glass vases, bottles, and ash trays? Also, is it proper to leave the cellophane wrapping on lampshades?—JUST A SLOB

DEAR JUST: It is never correct to leave the manufacturer's label on anything that is in use.

If you send a gift, yes — provided the price is not in evidence. Cellophane wrapping should come off the lampshade to show the true beauty of the fabric. Some people leave them on to "save" the shades — and I think it's an abomination.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After seven years of trying to have a family we decided to put our names in for an adopted child. Last week the agency called and told us that our baby had been born and we could come for him in a few days.

Sunday we attended a family dinner at mother's home and my husband announced the good news. My aunt who has a voice like a fog horn bellowed, "Obviously one of you can't have children. Has the doctor told you which one is at fault?"

I was flabbergasted and so was my husband. She then repeated the question in an even louder voice. I was steaming mad and replied, "What difference could it possibly make to you?"

My aunt turned red and snapped back, "Too bad your mother never taught you to respect your elders." Then she left.

Mother says I was rude and that Auntie meant well. Do you feel I owe her an apology as mother says?—STILL STEAMING

DEAR STILL: "Meant well" my eye. People who ask such intimate and tasteless questions should be hauled up short. Congratulations to you for having done it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DESPERATE: Why don't you write novels? Your phony letters are a waste of my time and your talent.

To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

W. A. Wilson Is Named To State Tax Court

William A. Wilson, 47, a member of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, yesterday received his commission from Gov. J. Fawcett as a member of the Maryland Tax Court.

The appointment becomes effective June 5 when Commissioner Wilson will submit his resignation as a county commissioner.

Wilson's appointment as a judge of the Tax Court is for a six-year term and the annual salary is $8,000. He will attend Tax Court hearings in Baltimore once weekly.

He succeeds Owen E. Hitchens, Buckingham Road, The Dingle, who was a member of the former State Tax Commission until the agency was reorganized into two units, the Tax Court and the State Taxation and Assessment Commission. Hitchens was on the state agency for 20 years. His term of office terminates next week.

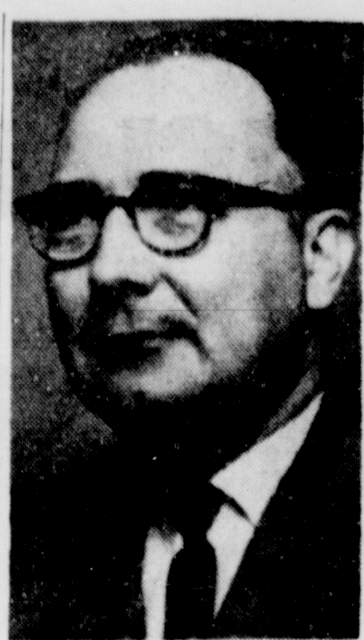

There are five judges on the Tax Court and not more than three of them can be of the same political party. Wilson will be one of the two minority members of the court, who are Republicans.

Wilson, a native of Cumberland, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Wilson, 226 Cecelia Street. His father is a retired B&O Railroad Company machinist.

Wilson is married to the former Aleda Blair, of Midland, and they have three daughters, Willeda, a teacher at West Side School; Martha Lou and Ruth Lee, both students at Valley High School. The couple resides in Midland.

A 1931 graduate of the old Pennsylvania Avenue High School, Wilson was a clerk in the Circuit Court clerk's office for 13 years and currently is a partner in the Cumberland Office Supply Company.

Wilson is treasurer of the Maryland State Volunteer Firemen's Association, a post he has held for many years; and after being ap-

The new Tax Court judge is a member of the Midland Methodist Church, the George Creek Valley AF and AM, the Lonaconing Lions Club and Lonaconing Republican Club.

Wilson will be replaced on the Board of County Commissioners by a Republican to be selected by the Republican State Central Committee of Allegany County.

Will Rainbowbacks Replace Greenbacks?

For Americans who have never succeeded in memorizing which president's face adorns which bill, the government may soon have another assist. U.S. Treasurer Elizabeth Rudel Smith has proposed a color code for currency.

Under this system, only the $1 bill would remain green, but the mystery is why it is planned to continue it since it has little purchasing power now.

Other denominations of paper money would be in various colors. The final decision on which would be which hasn't been made yet. But if the Treasury goes in for rainbow-hued money, the change will not come all at once.

The new money would be put in circulation while the old greenbacks were still in use.

It is easy to tell denominations of coins by their size. But paper money is identical in that respect. And goldbacks, which were a pretty sight, were abolished by Roosevelt.

Everyone has had the experience of receiving change for a $5 bill when he gave $10. A color code would help prevent this error. If the $5 bill were blue and the $10 denomination red, it would be easy to tell at a glance which is which. Counting money would be easier, too. Some countries have been printing paper money in various colors for years.

A better idea, of course, would be to start minting gold coins. There is nothing that imparts a feeling of well-being comparable to a pocketful of eagles and double eagles.

By George E. Sokolsky

"The Black Muslims"

The Negro explosion of 1961 is so different from other incidents that it requires special study. Dr. C. Eric Lincoln, a Negro clergyman and professor of philosophy, has done a very thorough sociological study of the Black Muslims, the followers of Elijah Muhammad. The Nation of Islam grows by leaps and bounds among Negroes in the United States.

Dr. Lincoln is a Christian but he approaches the anti-Christian Muslim movement with scholarly objectivity in his book, "The Black Muslims in America." He became interested in the subject when a student gave him a term paper which contained the following:

"The Christian religion is incompatible with the Negro's aspirations for dignity and equality in America. It has hindered where it might have helped; it has been evasive when it was morally bound to be forthright; it has separated believers on the basis of color although it has declared its mission to be a universal brotherhood under Jesus Christ. Christian love is the white man's love for himself and for his race. For the man who is not white, Islam is the hope for justice and equality in the world we must build tomorrow."

The Nation of Islam is attacking our civilization at its very heart. It teaches hate, not love. It teaches that the Black man is superior to the White man. It does not fuss with definitions; white is white and those who are not white are some degree of black. They want no co-mingling of races, no assimilation, no desegregation. As Minister Malcolm X, a powerful leader of this movement, said:

"We are never aggressors. We will not attack anyone. We strive for peaceful relationships with everyone. BUT—we teach our people! If anyone attacks you, lay down your life! Every Muslim is taught never to (initiate a) fight. Respect another man's rights whether he is white, black, brown, yellow or what-not! Respect him as a man. 'Do unto others as you would have them do unto you!' Never be the aggressor, never look for trouble. But if any man molests you, may Allah bless you!"

Dr. Lincoln's book is one to read because we so-called Whites sit in false security, hardly understanding or even knowing what goes on about us. The Black-Muslims in the United States have been encouraged by the rise of the independent African nations who come to sit in the United Nations, the equals of the British, the French, the Russians, and the Americans. One vote is assigned to each of these countries and one vote goes to Ghana and Guinea and Mali and even Chad.

While Reverend Martin Luther King preaches the Tolstoyan doctrine of non-resistance, the Black Muslims teach total separation. The Nation of Islam is a moral society which could accomplish a great deal for the Negroes of this country.

Dr. Lincoln makes the bold assertion that the Black Muslims are not an isolated phenomenon. He says: "In New York City alone, a score or more organizations operate in the name of black solidarity. Their central theme is always the glorification of black civilization and the deprecation of the white man's culture, which, whenever it has been adopted by the black man, has reduced him to impotence and ignominy."

This is not unusual. Each separated group regards itself as superior to all other peoples. It would seem as though every race of man is God's chosen people. Each race has its own mythology and tradition and prides its own small addition to human culture as the supreme contribution of man. This is not unusual. Dr. Lincoln says of this:

"A defensive kind of black nationalism finds occasional expression in the quarrels of Negro children everywhere. 'Black is honest,' they cry out, and, 'The blacker the berry, the sweeter the juice.' Even the Negro churches are often tinged with nationalism. An obscure African slave who rescued the Prophet Jeremiah from a cistern into which he had been thrown by his enemies is exalted as a symbol of righteousness and fearlessness in the service of God."

I cannot go further into quotations from this remarkable book, but I do recommend it to those who wish to understand what is going on in the lives of 15,000,000 Americans. We need to understand them if we are not to find ourselves in increasing ugliness such as Little Rock, Montgomery and New Orleans have experienced.

Kennedy Must Make Choice In Berlin Crisis

LONDON,

In addition to nuclear testing, there is only one other problem which President Kennedy is quite certain to discuss with Premier Khrushchev—the recurrently, endlessly critical problem of Berlin.

Here in London, it is very clear indeed that this need to talk about Berlin next weekend will force the President to make what may prove the biggest choice of his time in office. The point is that he cannot talk very effectively about Berlin unless he has already decided how he means to deal with the Berlin crisis when the crunch comes.

His choice lies between the Franco-German approach and the British approach. When Kennedy makes this choice, moreover, it will be the first time the American government has had a clearly defined policy. For President Eisenhower succeeded in avoiding the basic choice until he left office.

The Franco-German approach really represents the personal views of two men, Chancellor Adenauer and President de Gaulle. In both the French and German governments, there are high officials who sympathize with the quite different Berlin policy of Prime Minister Macmillan. But as long as de Gaulle and Adenauer hold office, no one else matters at all. And at their recent meeting in Bonn (so like a cosy dialogue between two ancient granite statues) Adenauer and de Gaulle reaffirmed their well known view.

Their view is: first, that the Berlin position, is absolutely vital to the Western Alliance; second that Berlin is not negotiable and ought not to be the subject of negotiations; and third, therefore, that the only way to protect Berlin is to convince Khrushchev that the West will fight for Berlin without bothering to argue about it.

Both General de Gaulle and Chancellor Adenauer are confident that if Khrushchev can only be convinced the West will fight for Berlin, he will soon abandon his attempts to grab Berlin. But this is easier said than done, since Khrushchev has made no secret of his sublime certainty that the Western Powers will never fight for Berlin.

He expressed this happy certainty most recently in a talk with Doctor Kroll, the German Ambassador to Moscow. He also graciously assured the German Ambassador that he would wait until after the Communist Party Congress next October to make his final grab.

The time is not far off, and the British long since began expounding to the President their view of the right way to handle the Berlin crisis. This view was summed up, at least in its most extreme form, in a foreign office paper long famous among the Western policy makers as the "slippery slope memorandum."

Basically, the British view is that the Western Powers not only ought to negotiate the Berlin problem with the Soviets, but should also be ready to make very great concessions. They do not admit that they advocate de facto recognition of the Communist government in Eastern Germany but the rest of the world would certainly call it de facto recognition, if the Western Allies follow the British line.

The British want passive, if pained, acceptance of a Soviet-East German peace treaty; passive acceptance of East German control of the Berlin access routes, which is to be symbolized by willing presentation of the documents of allied convoys to the East German highway controls; reduction of the Western garrisons in Berlin, and some other changes in the Berlin position as well.

The British hopefully say that if we make all these concessions to the Soviets, we may perhaps be able to trade our existing occupation rights in Berlin for new and better treaty rights. They swear they are ready to fight for what is essential, the freedom of West Berlin and the freedom of the Western Powers to use the access routes to Berlin. But they keep repeating that they cannot "fight for a rubber stamp," meaning that the East German highway controls have replaced Soviet highway controls after the Soviets have signed a treaty with the East Germans.

The formula, "we cannot fight for a rubber stamp," is both flagrantly misleading and propagandistic. The rubber stamp in question, of course, will be no more than the symbol of a deep change in the political status of Berlin. And this change will be made by the Soviets in open, contemptuous disregard of their numerous promises and commitments to the Western Allies. Yet there is little doubt that the British government's view about Berlin is rather more firm than British public opinion.

Meanwhile President Kennedy's view is unknown. The weary task of contingency prailing has been resumed by a Franco-German-British-American group in Washington. When Prime Minister Macmillan visited the White House, the Berlin question was also raised directly with the President by the Foreign Secretary Lord Home.

Yet Kennedy then contented himself with requesting Assistant Secretary of State Foy Kohler, Ambassador to London, David K. E. Bruce and former Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson to give their divergent opinions. So far, in short, Kennedy has not spoken out in person. No doubt he will have to do so even before he meets Khrushchev, in his talks with de Gaulle.

The choice he reveals when he speaks out at last has been the basic Western choice ever since Khrushchev started the new Berlin crisis over two years ago. But in the context of Cuba and Laos, this choice is now more important than ever. For in this context, the smallest retreat at Berlin will almost surely be the signal for forced retreats in many other places.

Meeting With De Gaulle Appears Tougher Than One With Khrushchev

WASHINGTON — Though the

Vienna meeting between Kennedy and Khrushchev is billed as the No. 1 problem facing the President, certain backstage factors indicate that the Paris meeting with De Gaulle will be just as difficult — possibly more so.

At Paris there will be the traditional links of friendship between France and the United States, dating back to LaFayette and extending through two world wars. There will also be the charm of Jacqueline Kennedy, her knowledge of the French language and her love of the majesty, the architecture, the beauty that once made Paris the cultural center of the world.

But behind this there is also the majesty of Charles Andre Marie Joseph De Gaulle, the man who has made aloofness his studied policy with three American Presidents, who regards himself as the leader of Western Europe, and who at the age of 70 will be sitting opposite a President just turned 44.

Always the height of courtesy, De Gaulle will give no hint during his talks that he has been irked at Kennedy. Among French aristocracy — and the French can be more royal than the British — Kennedy is sometimes called "Le Garin," "The Urchin." There will be no trace of this in De Gaulle's demeanor. However, he, along with most Frenchmen, nursed bitter resentment against

By Drew Pearson

Kennedy when, as a Senator, he proposed limited independence for Algeria.

Kennedy's Support Backfired

It matters not that Kennedy was right and that De Gaulle has now come around to his viewpoint. Nor does it matter that if the French had acted on Algeria at the time of Kennedy's speech, they could have saved Algeria — to say nothing of several thousand lives. The basic fact is that a proud race, and an especially proud President, don't like outside advice.

Then there is the persistent rumor that our Central Intelligence Agency conspired with the French generals to hatch the revolt in Algeria. Though firmly and repeatedly denied, a lot of Frenchmen still believe the CIA was guilty.

And even Kennedy's message to De Gaulle during the revolt, offering the support of American troops, has backfired. At first De Gaulle was pleased. But the more he got to thinking over an offer of outside support, the more it hurt the pride of a very proud President of France.

Some of this contributed to the fact De Gaulle had to be sounded out three times by Kennedy before the meeting was arranged. In contrast, Nikita Khrushchev took the initiative in arranging the Vienna meeting. He kept after Kennedy until a date and place were set.

Conflicts of Policy

Deeper and more important than a conflict of personalities is the French and American conflict of policies. Here are some of them:

Conflict No. 1 — France will not stop testing its own A-bomb. This at a time when both the USA and USSR have stopped testing and are in Geneva trying to work out a treaty for a permanent end of tests. The fact that France is continuing to pour nuclear poison into the atmosphere is one excuse given by Khrushchev for refusing to sign a nuclear treaty.

One reason given by France for continuing tests is because we won't give her any A-bomb secrets. This, of course, is barred by an Act of Congress, and the likelihood of any change by Congress was lessened by the French army revolt.

Conflict No. 2 — France loathes the United Nations. De Gaulle calls it "global incoherence," and will not put up one cent for the policing of the Congo, even though it was intransigent French colonialism in other parts of Africa which contributed to the problems of Africa.

Conflict No. 3 — France refused to join with the USA, Britain, and SEATO Allies in pledging the use of force to defend Laos, despite the fact that Laos was once part of French Indo-China, and despite the fact that the United States had advanced over two billion dollars to help the French try to save this area.

Conflict No. 4 — De Gaulle refuses to integrate French troops under one command in NATO, has pulled the French fleet out of the NATO fleet in the Mediterranean, and refused to permit American nuclear weapons to be stockpiled on French soil. This, despite the fact that American Military equipment, sent to supply French NATO divisions, has been siphoned off to Algeria to the tune of millions of dollars, thereby putting the American taxpayer in the position of paying for the Algerian civil war.

Conflict No. 5 — De Gaulle wants a veto power over American policy in various parts of the world, in which case he promises to be more cooperative in Europe. He wants, for instance to be consulted regarding American policy in Quemoy, Matsu, and Formosa, where, he points out, war might break which would drag an unwilling, reluctant, and innocent France into mortal conflict.

There is truth behind De Gaulle's position on this point. Yet no American President with a Senate to worry about can give him veto power over American policy.

Despite these difficulties, Charles De Gaulle is by all odds the most powerful figure in Western Europe, and basically a friend of the United States. He has a great and consistent record of fighting both Nazism and Communism. Without him today France would be in chaos.

He may be for Kennedy, what he was to Winston Churchill during the war, "the hardest cross I have to bear," yet he's a necessary cross, and the world will be waiting the outcome of the talks in Paris.

Sick Of Suicide

By John Crosby

Suzi Parker, who has spent much of her movie career on suspension from Twentieth Century-Fox, is on the verge of it again. "They want me to commit suicide again," said Miss Parker stormily. "I can't go through that again. Even the nurse (for her little girl) was shocked. She said: 'Oh, no, you're not going to commit suicide again.'"

Miss Parker was speaking of a role in a forthcoming picture. She has already committed suicide in one picture, "The Best of Everything," driven the late Gary Cooper to drinking himself to death in "Ten North Frederick," and been left at the end of other pictures in situations which led one to believe that suicide was her only way out.

"They've got all those other girls out there who can commit suicide much better than I can—Hope Lange, Lee Remick, Joanne Woodward. Great actresses, all of them. They went to the Actors Studio, had all those parts on TV, all that training — just to learn how to commit suicide. I don't want to be a great actress. Why don't they use me for the qualities I have?"

"God in heaven, I have a sense of humor and that's hard to come by these days — particularly at Twentieth Century-Fox. I'm always getting left. That's what happens to dramatic actresses. They're always getting left. Katherine Hepburn practically made a career out of getting left. This is the sort of part dramatic actresses dream about — the sort of part they win Academy Awards for."

"But I don't want to be a great dramatic actress. I want to be a girl scout. I'd like to play cowboy pictures—or science fiction. All I ask is that the audience think: 'She's not taking this any more seriously than we are.' Until they come up with what I really want, which is sophisticated comedy."

Miss Parker reviewed her picture career: First picture, "Kiss Them for Me," Gary Grant left her at the end of the picture, "tears streaming down my face." Second picture: "Ten North Frederick," Gary Cooper "leaves me for my own good which is the worst way to be left, and then

proceeds to drink himself to death. At the end, I'm marrying the wrong guy — tears streaming down my face." Third picture: "Best of Everything," "He leaves me and I hurl myself off the top of a building."

Fourth picture: "Circle of Deception," "First I plot to get this poor guy killed and then I have to tell him, 'This is for your own good.' Then he throws me out of his brother in Tangiers. There I am at the end of the picture, tears streaming down my face again, in a street in Tangiers."

"I'm always getting left." Now Twentieth Century-Fox has asked her to do a new picture called "A Summer World." "This one they want me to kill myself again — because this guy leaves me. Fabian! Imagine killing yourself over Fabian!"

Miss Parker said she was also asked to do another picture: "My husband and my husband's best friend—with whom I'm obviously having an affair — have one of those scenes in which one says: 'You take her,' and the other says: 'No, you take her.' Then they get drunk and go off together and I'm left with tears streaming down my face again. I'm tired of being a victim. I wouldn't mind being somebody who deserves all this — but the kind of girls I play things just happen to."

Why don't you go back to France, I suggested, and be rediscovered — like Jean Seberg. "I don't want to be Jean Seberg. I don't want ever to be taken seriously again. The crying thing, I dream about. They squirt stuff in your eyes to make you cry. Then they wheel up one of those enormous cameras which look like a small European car. Technicolor is worse because your eyes get red — and they want you to look beautiful and cry at the same time."

"Think of all the things that could happen to a heroine besides committing suicide."

Suicide, I said, shouldn't come so hard on the screen since she'd tried it for real once. "That didn't count because I was very young," said Miss Parker firmly. "Suicide doesn't count until you're twenty-four years old."

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

McNAMARA — Current gossip in Washington is that Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara may be the first Cabinet official to leave the administration. He is known to be having a rough time with top Pentagon brass in his efforts to translate administration policies into operating practices.

So far, he has been able to submerge the bitter rivalries among the armed services chiefs, but he has not been able to knock heads together so he can obtain the degree of co-operation necessary to achieve his goal of increased efficiency and a significant saving in the military budget.

McNamara, in his frustration, has taken to giving orders to the military leaders in the Pentagon, rather than consulting with them. He has resorted to this method because he found that whenever he confided his leanings in consultations, he was undercut both within the Defense Department and by leaks to opposition leaders on Capitol Hill.

If McNamara cannot soon achieve the strong backing of President Kennedy, which he feels he needs if he is to accomplish his task, look for the youthful "whiz kid" to return to the auto industry — probably back to the Ford Motor Co., which he headed for a brief period before moving into the forefront of the New Frontier.

What To Do About Clots In Leg Veins?

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Blood clots in the leg veins when the vessels are injured or inflamed. Clotting occurs also when the flow of blood through the extremities is slowed down to a trickle.

The round garter was a common culprit a generation ago because it acted like a tourniquet. The more modern rubber girdles may do the same when the wearer sits for several hours at a time. These garments were designed to maintain the figure when standing.

Resting in bed for long periods encourages unwanted blood clots. The small veins in the tissues of the back are squeezed between the body and the mattress, leading to stagnation of the circulation. This is one of the reasons why invalids should be turned frequently and propped up on alternate sides from time to time.

Clots that develop in leg veins (thrombophlebitis) cause pain, redness, and tenderness over the affected area. When the main vein is obstructed the leg swells. Involvement of the veins near the surface is less serious.

These lesions respond to rest, the application of heat, and the use of anti-coagulant drugs, especially injections of heparin. Preparations containing fibrinolysin dissolve clots and are said to be of value in these venous disorders. But large amounts are needed and the products are expensive. This must be considered in treatment because their value is questionable and they are difficult to use.

Injecting procaine into the sympathetic nerves along the spine also helps to improve the circulation. The antibiotics are given to combat the infection and hasten healing. When all signs of inflammation subside, the individual should wear an elastic stocking or bandage until swelling disappears.

William C. Holbrook Wins Soaring Meet Held Here

William C. Holbrook, this city, was presented the Kelly-Springfield trophy, emblematic of winning the Mid-Atlantic Soaring Association competition here, at an awards dinner Tuesday at the Wiley Ford Fire Hall.

Holbrook, chief pilot for the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, was declared the winner after amassing a total of 2,567 points in various events during the four-day meet.

He is the second Cumberland resident to win the association's contest, last year's winner being Dr. Robert K. Poling, local dentist.

The championship trophy was presented by George B. Newman, president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, who earlier in the day was taken on his initial sailplane ride by Holbrook. The ride was in a Schweizer 2-22.

Placing second in total points was Dr. Poling, who counted for 2,147 points while piloting a Schweizer 1-23. Third place went to Dr. Mario Piccagli, Chevy Chase, who competed in a Leister-Kauffman craft, as did Holbrook. The principal event Tuesday was a triangular run from the Municipal Airport, to Burlington and Keyser, and return. The 46 air-mile flight had to be completed without landing at either of the two "turns" and additional points were based on speed.

Winner of the event was Duane Sprague, Cincinnati, who piloted a Schweizer 1-26 over the course in an hour and 45 minutes. Dr. Piccagli made the flight in two hours, four minutes, and Holbrook placed third by completing the course in three hours.

Checking the craft at the Burlington turn-point were David E. Long and Herbert Feller, while Bernie Cohen, Baltimore, performed similar duties at the Burlington Air Park.

A Cincinnati duo, Sprague and Don Brockhurst, won the team trophy for the four-day meet. They amassed a total of 2,813 points while competing in a Schweizer 1-26. Runnersup were Clarence Stein, Kutztown, Pa., and his brother, Alton Stein, Bethlehem, Pa., who finished with 1,311 points, and Dale Guston and Robert Court, Elmira, N. Y., 1,100 points.

Gordon Bogora, Washington, piloted a 1-26 to within an inch and a half of the target to win a spot landing event Tuesday. The trophy for duration flight was won by Holbrook who remained aloft over "Duration Ridge," as the pilots termed Knobley Mountain, for six hours, 57 minutes. Dr. Piccagli placed second by soaring for six hours and 45 minutes.

Three pilots qualified for portions of the events toward the Silver C award. Clarence Stein and Gene Wilburn, Chevy Chase, attained the altitude events, with the former going up to a peak of 6,400 feet after release at 2,000 feet, and Wilburn reaching 5,000 feet after release from 800 feet.

Dr. Piccagli attained two legs toward the award, staying aloft over five hours and traveling to Moorefield for the distance qualification.

The Silver C, it was explained, is presented after a pilot meets duration, distance and altitude minimums. It is required that a pilot stay aloft five hours, travel 32 air miles and reach an altitude of 3,300 feet from point of release.

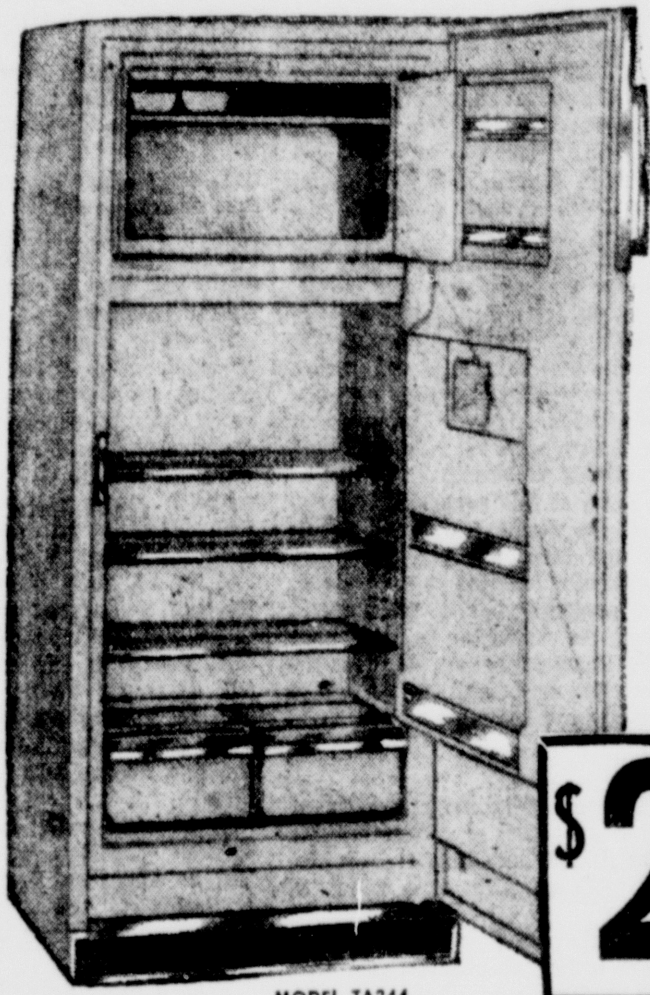

Pilots said Tuesday's weather was good for area flying, but not for distance, explaining that the thermals were "far between."

Dr. Piccagli was the principal speaker at last night's dinner, discussing soaring procedures in other countries where he has participated in meets. A film, "Sky Sailing," prepared by the Schweizer Aircraft Corporation, was shown.

Attracting considerable attention at the meet was a Schweizer 1-30, an experimental single-place, 65-horsepower sport and tow plane. The craft was flown in by Tony Doherty, sales manager for the firm, who said the craft is now in production.

The British fought the Boer War against the African settlers, who were largely of Dutch descent.

Memorial Service Honors War Dead, Blast Victims

"The Price of Freedom" was the topic of the Memorial Day talk at Rose Hill Cemetery Tuesday by John C. Sullivan, local attorney and World War II veteran.

The memorial service for war dead included the nine men who lost their lives May 22 in an explosion at the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory at Rocket Center, a research and development facility for rockets.

Sullivan stated "Human freedom, one of the most precious of all treasures, is acquired not by gift but by purchase. The purchase price is suffering, sacrifice and in many instances death. Once acquired, there is no assurance that it will be retained. Only by the most careful watch and diligent vigilance can it be preserved."

"We come here today," Sullivan said, "to pay honor and tribute to those who gave their lives in the battle for freedom and those who in any capacity since the settlement of our country gave their lives for freedom."

This latter group also includes the nine men who gave their lives at the ABL facility while working in the interest of national security, Sullivan pointed out. He said that their work at ABL was directly connected with our efforts to match the Russians in rocket development.

Damage High In Winter Was Tough One For SRC

Damage estimated at $15,000 was caused late Sunday night near Meyersdale in a crash involving a B&O passenger train, an automobile and a tractor-trailer.

State police gave this account: Frank Swindell, 40, of Garrett RD 2, Pa., was driving his car along Route 219 when he slowed to turn into a side road. Harold N. Bonner, 34, Cumberland, was in a tractor-trailer behind the Swindell car.

When Bonner also attempted to slow down, he discovered his brakes were gone. He swung the big truck off the highway to the left. However, the rig crashed into Swindell's machine and came to rest across the railroad tracks which parallel Route 219.

Noticing that a train was approaching Bonner leaped from the truck and ran down the tracks frantically signalling the train to stop. The train slowed but crashed into the truck, pushing it 50 feet down the tracks.

The State Roads Commission has the figures to prove that the past winter was a mighty hard one.

It cost almost $2,400,000 for plowing, salting and cinder roads maintained by the state. The exact figure, the SRC says, was $2,386,929.99. That's 30 per cent above the previous record of about $1,800,000. In the 1959-60 winter, the cost was $1,400,000.

Although the snowfall is greatest annually in this Western Maryland district, the overall snow removal cost was greatest in the Baltimore and Washington suburbs.

Road officials explained that the concentration of state highways is greater in the urbanized sections and pressure there to open roads swiftly required use of more chemicals and rented equipment.

Baltimore and Harford counties accounted for $668,000. The Washington suburban counties of Montgomery and Prince Georges added $416,000.

The district including Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties accounted for $330,000. The low district was on the lower Eastern Shore where the total expenditure for snow removal was only $87,000.

Before winter came, the SRC had anticipated spending about $1,800,000 for snow removal.

Several projects including participation by the society in community safety events also were discussed at the meeting. Mr. Johnson plans to set up committees which will consider the projects and offer recommendations to the society at the next meeting.

The society will observe a summer recess and the next meeting will be held Thursday, September 28. A representative of the Kemper Insurance Company will be the guest speaker at the September meeting.

The bidding:
1♥ Pass 2♣ Pass 3NT Pass
2NT Pass 3NT Pass
Opening lead: Jack of ♠

There is something very corny about the blatant false carding so frequently indulged in by your neighbor and mine in an effort to deceive the opposition.

West in today's hand engineered a bit of deception which, while it proved completely disarming, was nevertheless the essence of simplicity.

Against the contract of three no trump, West opened the jack of spades and declarer held up. East signaled with a nine and West continued the suit. Declarer was in at trick two and naturally attacked the club suit, intending, of course, to finesse the jack.

But West without a betraying huddle played the queen. This presented declarer with a problem. For, in the absence of a false card, East was marked with four to the ten of clubs, effectively stopping the suit. True enough, if West were practicing a bit of skulduggery, and list the contract among his assets. On the other hand, if the queen were singleton, taking the trick would limit declarer to three tricks in the suit and place the contract virtually out of reach. This was one pot which declarer could not afford to call, and he decided to settle for five club tricks by permitting the queen to hold, placing his hopes with the diamond finesse for his ninth trick. There was the further chance that discarding on the long club suit would prove burdensome to West.

When the queen of clubs held the trick, West, of course, established the spade suit. Declarer then ran the clubs and West was compelled to make four discards. He realized that he must keep all his spades if he were to take enough tricks to defeat the contract and foresaw that eventually he must let go the two small diamonds.

Rather than make these discards later and blank the king of diamonds under pressure at a time when declarer might diagnose the situation, he shrewdly chose as his first two discards the two and six of diamonds, and then the eight and three of hearts. Under these conditions declarer chose to finesse the queen of diamonds and West claimed the balance of the tricks.

South had been taken in by the enemy but his defeat can hardly be looked upon as humiliating. Observe that West's play of the queen of clubs had nothing to lose, inasmuch as it must fall whether declarer finesses or plays for the drop. But it might shed a false light on the enemy scene.

Housing Permits Total $538,075

Building permits valued at $170,275 were issued by the City of Cumberland during May to bring the total for the first five months of 1961 to $538,075.

The May permits included new construction valued by builders at $155,100 and additions and improvements estimated to cost $15,175.

The building permits issued during the first five months of this year are valued at $718,435 less than the five month total of $256,510 last year.

The general construction picture is better, however, since last year's five-month total included $921,000 for the construction of Fort Cumberland Homes, the city's third low-rent public housing project.

Nurses Find New Medical Discovery Calms Pre-Period Tension, Nerves Relieves Menstrual Cramps, Pain

Helps Ease Women Into Their Periods By Releasing Pressure On Sensitive Female Tissues

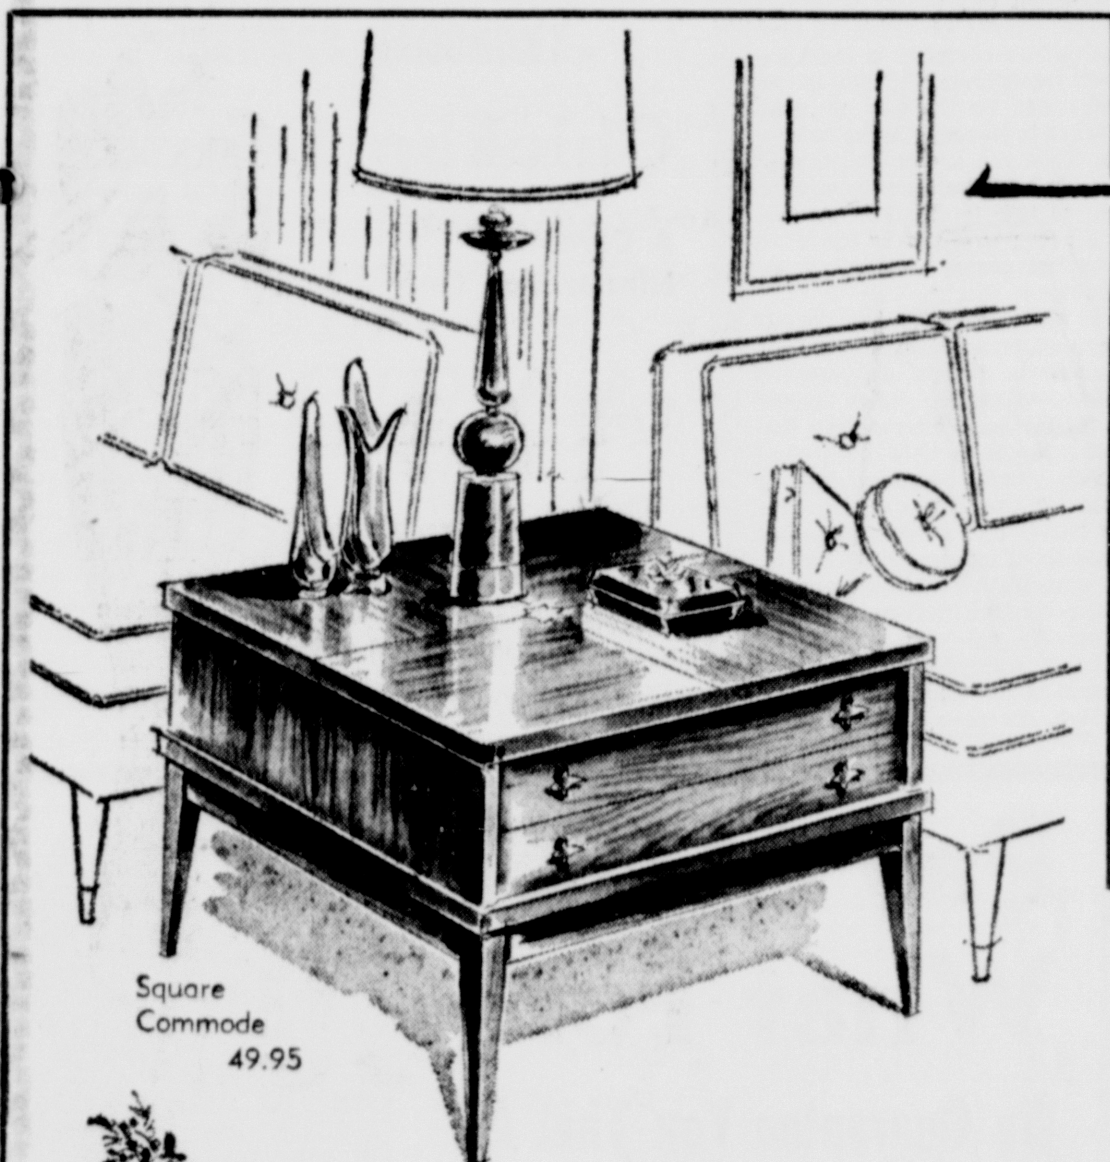

New York, N. Y. (Special)—Medical science has developed an astonishing new formula that now does both: calms pre-period tension and nervousness—helps relieve menstrual cramps and pain.

In tests conducted by hundreds of nurses on themselves, many reported nervousness and irritability were calmed. Abdominal bloat, soreness of breasts and fatigue were reduced. Cramps, backache, depression and headache were relieved. So effective is this new medical discovery that Registered Nurses make such statements as, "A great help both before and during menstruation." "Relieves all symptoms." "More effective than other preparations taken—including prescription drugs." All this without narcotics or tranquilizers, and without changing the regularity of the period in any way. Nurses confirm in this test that women actually ease through more comfortable periods.

A secret of this new discovery (called Trender® Tablets) is the way it releases excess water fluids that doctors know build up in the days before the period. This build-up causes bloat, soreness, pressure on sensitive female tissues. Trender Tablets work by releasing the excess water fluids so pressure in tissues is relieved and by relieving cramps and pain.

The ingredients in Trender Tablets are completely safe and effective taken as directed. Trender Tablets are available at all drug counters without prescription.

NOTICE

The management of St. Michael's Cemetery, Frostburg, Maryland, hereby wishes to serve notice on all owners of lots in St. Michael's Cemetery. Henceforth, we intend to enforce strictly those regulations explicitly stated on every deed under the heading "Extracts from Rules of St. Michael's Cemetery, Frostburg, Maryland."

Section 2 states that "no fence, figure, railing, tree, shrub or mound shall be permitted on lots." All trees, shrubs and plants, therefore, must be removed.

Section 3. "All lots should be level and be clothed with a durable lawn grass. The lot owner expressly agrees to keep the grass neatly trimmed and free from weeds, briars and plants of every species." Perpetual care is available to maintain a lot in the above-mentioned condition after the initial cost of repairing the lot.

Section 4. Monuments erected in St. Michael's Cemetery must be supported by concrete foundations not less than six feet in depth and in proportion to size and weight of monument. Since no new monuments are now permitted in St. Michael's Cemetery, this pertains only to those already erected, many of which are badly in need of repairs to both foundation and stone. If repairs are not made to such monuments within sixty days from May 31, 1961, these monuments which are considered dangerous by the management will be removed and sold to defray the cost of repairing the lots.

In the future only headstones and corner-posts placed level with the ground will be permitted.

Safe Highway Drive Started In W. Virginia

State Steps Up
Law Enforcement

KEYSER—Memorial Day was proclaimed the official starting date for the "Slow Down and Live" program in West Virginia according to Cpl. F. W. Armstrong of the local detachment of State Police.

The order, issued by Gov. W. W. Barron, contained a request that each motorist turn on his car lights during daylight driving hours on Tuesday and Wednesday as a special signal to other drivers and pedestrians to "See the Light . . . Slow Down and Live."

Cpl. Armstrong said the simple act of turning on the lights will remind neighbors and fellow motorists of the tragic coincidence in disasters which the driving public can prevent. He mentioned the three worst disasters the United States ever experienced: The Galveston tidal wave in 1900 which took 6,000 lives; the Titanic tragedy in 1912 in which 1,517 lost their lives; and the Johnstown flood in 1889, in which 2,209 were killed. The three incidents cost a total of 9,726 lives.

Cpl. Armstrong said that by the most macabre coincidence the exact same number of lives—9,726—were taken in traffic accidents in the U. S. in three consecutive summer driving months.

June, July, and August of 1958. "But there was one major difference," he said. "The entire world mourned the loss of life caused by natural disasters; yet no one seems to know or care about the man-made disasters which occur on our streets and highways every summer."

He added that while better laws, better enforcement, better engineering and better vehicles are all part of the solution, it is a better driver behind the wheel, or a better pedestrian on the street, who can do the most.

All state and local police officials have been instructed to step up enforcement during the next three months when vacation driving makes conditions extremely hazardous, he noted.

PSC Annual Is Dedicated To Mrs. John Stanhagen

Served 26 Years As Secretary

To Presidents At Keyser College

KEYSER—Mrs. Gertrude South Stanhagen, secretary to the presidents of Potomac State College for 26 years, has been honored in the dedication of the 1961 yearbook, "The Catamount."

The 128-page volume, which was distributed Friday was co-edited by Miss Margaret Sue Judy and Miss Patricia Mathias under the supervision of faculty advisor, Dudley W. Gordon.

The tribute reads: "For 26 years Mrs. Stanhagen has served the college well as secretary first to President J. W. Stayman, 1935-36, and then to President E. E. Church, since 1936. She has the distinction of being one of two employees with the longest service record at this institution.

"Hers has been the pleasant voice which has greeted literally thousands of students, parents, and the many others who have telephoned the president's office through the years; hers the handwork of setting in type the volumes of letters originating in that office in over a quarter of a century; hers the countenance which has met the gaze of those seeking audience with the chief executive.

"Mrs. Stanhagen's position is one to which she has brought not only secretarial skills, but a lifetime of devotion, loyalty, and trust and the highest possible good public relations."

A native of Morgantown, she is married to John (Skepp) Stanhagen, manager of the Student Center at the college.

The yearbook, which is printed in offset, contains eight pages in color depicting various scenes of the campus and community relative to the general theme, "Our World Within a World." Divided into eight sections, it features "A world of organized participation . . . of scholastic endeavor . . . and happy memories."

The foreword explains that "Our world at Potomac State College is a small world of education within the larger world and . . . the Catamount attempts . . . to portray this small world by representing the people, the activities, and the classes that make up our campus . . ." In addition to the dedication the contents include administration and faculty, sophomores, freshmen, campus queens, organizations, sororities and fraternities, and sports.

The front and back interiors are two-page color reproductions of a view from Grandfather's Mountain. Other colored photos are the entire campus from Green Mountain, the Student Center and Memorial Hall, the men's dormitories looking west from the campus circle, Reynold's Hall (the women's dormitory) and a view of Keyser as seen from the campus.

Commencement week in the high schools of Allegany County is here and interest is focused on the winners of special athletic awards, the oldest of which dates back to 1925.

In 1925, Charles E. Babst, an alumnus of Allegany County High School, instituted the Babst Award for Allegany's outstanding student athlete and the first winner was the late Edgar "Eddie" Wolfe. His brother, Albert, earned the award two years later.

Friday night at Campobello, the 37th annual winner of the Babst award will be announced at Allegany High School's commencement exercises. This is the oldest

Mr. Babst, who is employed by Celanese at Charlotte, N. C., donated a wrist watch to the athlete named as the recipient of the award.

21st Hazelwood Award
Tonight at the Fort Hill High School commencement, the twenty-first George F. Hazelwood Award will go to the top student athlete.

This award had its inception in 1941 and the first winner was Eugene Hook. Eddie Landis was the 1951 winner and his brother Gerald was the recipient of the gold wrist watch offered by George F. Hazelwood, well known general contractor, in 1955.

Beall Confers Honors

Beall High School's coveted athletic award is offered by the Varsity Club and will be presented tonight at commencement exercises in Frostburg.

Cup Matches Begin Today

Snead, Demaret To Defend Title

DORADO BEACH, Puerto Rico (AP)—Tropical heat and a wind-swept course just tough enough to separate the golfers from the hackers will be the twin hazards when the ninth annual Canada Cup International Golf Matches start Thursday.

The heat has been the principal subject of conversation since the 66 golfers of international repute began gathering here for this unusual competition which includes a two-man team contest and an individual championship.

Temperatures have been in the upper 80's with high humidity. It is alleviated only by the constant trade winds which blow golf shots astray.

The tree-lined Dorado Beach course is 7,115 yards long and well trapped for the two-man teams from 33 nations.

The top teams figure to be the United States, with 49-year-old Sam Snead and 51-year-old Jimmy Demaret as the cup defenders; Australia, Ireland, England, Scotland, Wales, Canada and Puerto Rico.

33 Race Drivers To Split Purse Of $400,000

Victor, A. J. Foyt, Gets Lion's Share

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A. J. Foyt's victory in the 500-mile Memorial Day auto race won for the handsome Texan and owners of his car a record $110,400.

The 33 drivers, some in band-aids but all present, met Wednesday night to cut a $392,925 pie—also a record.

Foyt's prize was $140,000 more than Jim Rathmann won last year, and the total purse compares with $369,150 in 1960. Second-place winner Eddie Sachs collected $53,400.

Sharing with Foyt were co-winners Bob Bowes, Indianapolis manufacturer, and George Bignotti, Burlingame, Calif., master mechanic and designer. Foyt also got the Thunderbird pace car.

Australian Jack Brabham, world racing champion, took home $7,250 and the Peugeot Trophy, presented for the outstanding performance by a foreign driver.

The Indianapolis Motor Speedway contributed $295,100. It guarantees $150,000 and adds a share of gate receipts. By tradition, however, the attendance figure is secret.

Lap prizes totaled $30,000, raised by private subscription, and accessory firms contributed $67,825. In addition, merchandise prizes totalling thousands, were awarded the drivers.

Final officials standings, posted Wednesday after an all-night study of the electric timing tape, showed both Foyt and runnerup Eddie Sachs broke the race record.

It also turned up an almost incredible one-lap record by Troy Ruttman, the 1952 winner.

Ruttman roared through the 91st lap of the race at 147.589 miles an hour, faster than any of the 33 starters averaged in the 10-mile time trials when they were alone on the track.

Foyt's average for the distance was 139.130 miles an hour; Sachs' 139.041. The old mark was 138.767 by Jim Rathmann in winning the 1960 race.

WVU To Meet Florida State In NCAA Tourney

GASTONIA, N.C. (UPI)—West Virginia makes its first NCAA baseball tournament appearance in six years when it goes against strong Florida State Thursday night in the opener of the District 3 playoffs.

The three-team, double-elimination event will qualify an entrant for the national finals tourney at Omaha, Neb., June 9-14.

West Virginia and Florida State play at 6:30 p.m. EST. The winner will come right back and play Duke, the Atlantic Coast Conference champion, at 9 p.m.

Bednarik Signs Eagles Contract

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Chuck Bednarik, the "Old Ironsides" of the Philadelphia Eagles, signed his 1961 football contract with the champion Eagles Wednesday with the private hope that it would be his last.

In a nutshell, the indestructible one who had his 36th birthday on May 1, did it for the wife and kids.

And there also was the fact that "the clutch," signing for his 13th season in the pro wars, admitted that last season was his best year and "that there's nothing holding me back—I believe I can keep going."

Since 1947 the Dodgers have the best won-lost record in the N.L. and since 1949 have hit more home runs than any other major league team.

'500' WINNER — A. J. Foyt, young Houston, Texas, driver will get the lion's share of a purse estimated at about $400,000 for winning the classic Indianapolis Speedway Memorial Day 500-mile auto race.

The 26-year-old winner finished a little over 8 seconds ahead of Eddie Sachs when the latter made a late pit stop which cost him the lead. Foyt averaged a record 139.130 miles per hour.

Terp Honors Go To Betty, Quinn

Seniors Awarded Watch And Ring

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Dale Betty, football quarterback from Butler, Pa., and Paul Quinn, golfer from Baltimore, received the top sports awards at the University of Maryland senior class banquet Wednesday night.

Betty was presented the Silver watch, named for a former university president, for typifying the best in college athletics.

Quinn received the Maryland ring for selection as best athlete of the year.

On the gridiron, Betty set several career and season records for the university. In three years, he completed 127 of 218 passes in 30 games. His 82 completions was a new high for one season.

In the classroom, Betty was a top student in engineering. He is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary and leadership fraternity.

Quinn tied for the individual championship of the Atlantic Coast Conference. With Quinn playing number one, the Maryland golf team has won 24 of its 25 matches the past three years. He set a competitive course record of 67, five under par, for the Maryland course.

Mason, McCagh Win Best-Ball Tourney

Bert Mason and Frank McCagh won the two-some best-ball flag tournament held by the men's golf association at the Cumberland Country Club on Memorial Day.

Second were Max Bastian and John T. Mason and third were John Wilson and Donald Ebner.

In spring handicap golf tourney play on Tuesday Jerome Ellenson and O. W. Jackson advanced to the semi-finals of the championship flight by turning back Russ Ponton and George Garlitz, respectively, by identical 4 and 3 scores.

In the first flight Bill Zeller beat Dick Zembower, 3 and 2; in the seventh flight, Carl McIntyre was returned the victor over Bert Graham, 1 up; and in the eighth flight Tom Foreman downed Jean Muir, 4 and 3, in other tourney matches.

BASKETBALL STAR
ST. PAUL MINNESOTA (UPI)—Earl Battey of the Minnesota Twins was so outstanding as a basketball player that he was offered a contract by the Harlem Globetrotters.

For all-time standings in the American League the Yankees are far in front with 5,015 wins and 3,702 losses. Cleveland is second, Detroit, third.

Lions, K. Of C. Win Contests

The Lions defeated the Elks 2-1, and the K. of C. blanked the Republican Club, 3-0, in a pair of Frostburg Little League games played yesterday and Tuesday.

On Memorial Day the Lions, behind the four-hit pitching of Gary Donis, edged the Elks with a pair of runs in the fifth inning. Jim Pinto led the victors at the plate with two hits while Dan Lemmert also collected a pair of singles for the losers.

Yesterday the K. of C. backed up Keith Schell's four-hit, 10 strikeout pitching by shoving over a pair of runs in the first inning and another in the third to defeat the GOP tossers.

Schell had a pair of hits for the winners while Rocky Keister smacked a double for the Republican Club's only extra base blow.

Oral Vaccine Starts Today At Schools

Three-Day Mass Immunization Test Gets Under Way

Thousands of school children are expected to take the Sabin oral polio vaccine today as a three-day mass test immunization program opens in Allegany County.

School children whose parents have completed the necessary consent forms will swallow the tasteless vaccine in little cups of distilled water at their schools.

Adults, pre-school children and anyone else who turns up will get the vaccine tomorrow and Saturday at 17 dispensing centers conveniently located throughout Allegany County.

The Allegany-Garrett County Medical Society, sponsoring the program in connection with Wyeth Laboratories, supplier of the free vaccine, said many people apparently do not fully understand some important aspects of the program.

Here is a brief summary of some of the major points:

WHAT IS THE 'TEST'?

This is not a "guinea-pig" operation to test the safety of an unknown substance. The safety and effectiveness of the Sabin oral polio vaccine have been established by the Division of Biological Standards of the U.S. Public Health Service.

The test locally is to help determine the most effective minimum dosage of the vaccine before it gets its final licensing for sale. It has been well tested, and the present vaccine is the first manufactured in this country under the final regulations of the Public Health Service governing its eventual general use.

Everyone will be given the vaccine. There will be no "dud" doses to serve as a control, as in certain other types of scientific studies.

BLOOD SAMPLES

Some confusion has arisen about blood samples. Only about 300 will be needed, and these will be accepted from volunteers only, in the seven-year-old and younger age group.

The blood samples will help doctors to determine who is already immune, who acquires immunity from the vaccine, and so on.

This is the only way doctors can learn these things. It also is the only way a parent can learn the status of his child's immunity to polio.

No child will be pressured into giving blood if he doesn't want to, and nobody will want to give it in order to get the vaccine.

EVERYBODY'S INVITED

Although dispensing centers will be located only in Allegany County, people will be welcomed at the centers, no matter whether they live in Allegany County or somewhere else. Doctors have particularly invited Garrett countians and residents of nearby areas of West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

The medical society advises that everyone from three months to 45 years take the vaccine, but persons past 45 who want it may have it.

SALK SHOTS

If you've had Salk shots, take the oral vaccine anyway, say the doctors. It provides a different type of immunity and is better at preventing epidemics.

But keep on taking your Salk shots if you haven't finished the full course, because the oral vaccine you'll get this week will protect you only against Type 1 polio. Immunity to the two other types won't be provided by the oral vaccine until two more clinics are held this fall.

WHAT ABOUT THE FORMS?

Pick up two forms for each person at your nearest drug store, fill them out, and take them to the dispensing center when you go for your dose of vaccine. You need a registration card and a release form. A child needs a registration card and a parental consent form instead of a release form.

In Mt. Savage, forms may be picked up at Harry Poland's gas station. In Eckhart, they're available at Dudley's Market and Filling's Store.

FREE TRANSPORTATION

Anybody who doesn't have a way to get to a dispensing center can get a free ride by calling PA 2-3353. The Cumberland Jaycees are providing transportation.

Oral Vaccine Facts

In this series of reports, Albert B. Sabin, M.D., developer of the oral polio vaccine, answers some of the most common questions about his vaccine.

- Q. How is the oral vaccine administered?
A. Two drops of vaccine are added to a teaspoonful of simple syrup (distilled water will be used in Allegany County) or ordinary granulated sugar. In the U.S.S.R. the vaccine has been incorporated in candy balls, which has greatly facilitated the vaccination of large numbers of children in the shortest possible time.
- Q. What is the most effective way of using the new vaccine: in community-wide programs or on an individual basis?
A. The fastest way to eliminate polio is to break the chain of transmission. This can be done in a single season only by a community-wide program. I must stress that there are two important phases to this program:
1. Community-wide immunization of the largest possible number of susceptibles (everyone under 40) during the months of November to June.
2. Subsequent immunization of all newborn children during the first year of life as part of their regular medical care.

Airport Unit Denies Firm's Plan For Gas

Also Recommends 10 New Hangars

The Municipal Airport Commission last night rejected a proposal by the National Jet Company to provide 100-octane fuel at the local airport and announced it already has taken steps to provide the fuel here.

The action was taken at a meeting at City Hall to discuss the proposal offered by the LaVale firm, which has a plane based at the local airport.

John J. Rowan, chief pilot for National Jet, wrote to the commission last week stating the firm must go elsewhere to secure 100-octane fuel for its plane. He added the city is also losing additional revenue because transient aircraft and a number of new small aircraft require this type of fuel.

He said the firm would be willing to assume the entire cost of procuring and installing tanks and pumps for dispensing 100-octane fuel. National Jet Company would pump it only for its own use. The city in turn would pump the fuel it could sell and the net profits would be equally divided.

The commission last night also agreed to recommend to the mayor and council that 10 aluminum hangars be purchased, since there has been a need for additional hangars for some time.

The commission stated the hangars would cost $20,000 and would pay for themselves over a five-year period with a monthly income of $350. The unit said the additional hangars would be an asset instead of a liability.

Members of the commission include W. Donald Smith, chairman; G. Wyatt Breneman, secretary; and Mayor J. Edwin Keech. T. Donald Shires, T. Lohr Richards, Dr. W. Royce Hodges and George B. Newman.

2 Brothers, Fireman Die In Tragedy

Fire Chief Suffers Heart Attack After Rescuing One Victim

Two young brothers and a volunteer fire chief who tried to save one of them died yesterday morning as the result of a fire which destroyed a mobile house trailer in Frostburg.

Jeffrey Bullers, two, and his 14-month-old brother, Douglas, died of burns in Miners Hospital.

James Lamberson, 31-year-old fire chief at Barton, suffered a fatal heart attack after he pulled one of the youngsters from the burning trailer. He died seconds later.

The two children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bullers who lived at the Lowry-Moser Trailer Park, 56 Green Street, Frostburg, died in the hospital shortly before noon. The fire occurred about 8 a. m.

Was "Fireman Of Year"

Mr. Lamberson, who was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital, had been chief of the Barton Hose Company for three years, was named "Fireman of the Year" in 1959 by the Allegany-Garrett County Volunteer Firemen's Association.

An autopsy performed on the man indicated he had suffered a severe heart attack which was fatal, the deputy county medical examiner's office reported last night.

Manager of the meat department at the Acme Market in Frostburg, Lamberson went along with the Frostburg firefighters when the alarm sounded.

The older of the two brothers was rescued from the blazing and smoke-filled trailer by Frostburg Fireman James McMorran and Lamberson, who collapsed as he stepped from the mobile home. Douglas was rescued by Louis Henry, another member of the Frostburg Fire Department.

The children were rushed to Miners Hospital in a station wagon operated by Police Chief William Goebel. Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation was given en route by Henry, McMorran and Albert Neal.

Parents At Work

Fire Chief Joseph Durst Jr. said Mr. and Mrs. Bullers were at work when the fire occurred. Babysitting at the trailer home was Mrs. Charlotte Davis, 18, of 212 Center Street, Frostburg. Mrs. Davis was accompanied by a young daughter while attending the Bullers boys and a four-year-old son.
